'Joe Finn Building' Dedicated To Affordable Housing Advocate

22 Units Of Affordable Housing At 1433 Hancock St., Quincy Center

By SCOTT JACKSON

A newly renovated building with 22 units of affordable housing in the heart of Quincy Center was recently dedicated as the "Joe Finn Building" in honor of Finn, a longtime advocate for affordable housing and a former member of the Quincy City Council.

"Joe Finn's life work has been about helping those that can't help themselves," Mayor Thomas Koch said during the dedication ceremony on the morning of Sept. 9.

Located at 1433 Hancock St., the three-story building is home to a pizzeria and a cellphone store on the first floor with the housing units

Healey, Diehl Win Quincy Enroute To Gubernatorial Nominations

Voter Turnout Here For Primaries 19.73 Percent; 5,457 Voters Cast Ballots Early

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy voters backed the winner in all of the contested races in the recent state primary election, including Geoff Diehl and Maura Healey, both of whom notched a victory in the city en route to becoming their party's chosen candidate for the November gubernatorial election.

Turnout in Quincy for the Sept. 6 primary was 19.73 percent, with 12,929 of the city's 65,526 registered voters casting ballots. That total includes 5,457 voters who cast their ballots early, either by mail or in person.

Diehl, of Whitman, a former state representative and former candidate for US Senate, won the Republican primary for governor over Wrentham businessman Chris Doughty, 55.6 percent to 44.4 percent statewide.

In Quincy, Diehl prevailed with 65.38 percent of the vote, netting 2,096 votes to Doughty's 1,097.

Diehl will face Healey, a Boston Democrat and the state's current attorney general, in November. Healey finished with 85.5 percent of the vote statewide in the primary and with 83.98 percent of the vote in Quincy, netting 7,798 votes in the city. Sen. Sonia Chang-Diaz, likewise of Boston, also appeared on the ballot but withdrew from the race before voting began.

She polled 14.5 percent of the vote statewide and 15.3 percent in Quincy, netting 1,421 votes in the city.

In the Republican primary for lieutenant governor, former Rep. Leah Allen of Danvers bested former Rep.

Federal Grant For Firefighter Training

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Quincy Fire Department received a grant of $272,727 from the Federal Emergency Management Agency that will allow 20 firefighters to receive training in technical rescue skills.

The City Council on Monday approved a $27,272 appropriation to cover the city's share of the training costs.

Fire Chief Joseph Jackson said the training would cover technical rescue techniques for scenarios that require special skills and equipment.

"This is to teach us technical rescue skills like high-angle rescue in a confined space, trench rescue, stuff like that - not the typical things we do as firefighters with ladders and hoses. It teaches specialized skills that take specialized equipment, which we have thanks to you helping us out to have this equipment," he told city councillors.

City To Distribute Masks To The Public

The City of Quincy Office of Emergency Management will begin the distribution of surgical masks free of charge to the public on Monday, Sept. 19th.

Quincy residents wishing to receive an issue of masks can email: emergencyoperations@quincyma.gov or call 617-376-1105 to schedule an appointment for mask pick-up.

Mask distribution will be conducted at the Richard J. Koch Park and Recreation complex located at 1 Merry-mount Parkway, and appointments for pick-up will be available Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. In order to receive masks, residents will be required to verify Quincy residency by presenting either a valid MA driver's license or a current utility bill with a Quincy address.

Through partnerships with FEMA and MEMA, Quincy Emergency Management has distributed a total of more than 3,000,000 total pieces of Personal Protective Equipment (PPE), that has included multiple types of masks, sanitizing equipment, and other types of PPE to community partners, municipal departments, and the public since March 2020.

Sun Publisher Presented American Legion Patriot Award

Robert Bosworth Honors Father's Legacy At National Convention In Milwaukee

By JEFF STOFFER
The American Legion

At a time when newspapers across the country are transforming — many into oblivion in the digital media revolution — The Quincy Sun in Massachusetts' historic "City of Presidents" continues to print and publish a thriving community weekly that focuses on local news, features, sports and, significantly, the interests of military veterans.

Second-generation publisher/editor Robert Bosworth accepted the national organization's prestigious Patriot Award Aug. 30 at the 103rd American Legion National Convention, in Milwaukee.

"The patriotic editorial content of the weekly newspaper follows the proud legacies of native sons John Adams, John Quincy Adams and John Hancock," American Legion National Commander Paul E. Dillard said when presenting the award. "Its coverage of veterans, the military and The American Legion has been top-notch and has continued over the years under the leadership of editor Robert Bosworth ... The American Legion has long recognized the importance of a free press in our constitutional republic — much like our nation's founders who lived in Quincy."

In touching acceptance remarks, Bosworth made it clear to whom credit belongs for the newspaper's continued award-winning vitality: his father, World War II Navy veteran and Legionnaire Henry W. Bosworth, Jr.

Henry was a signalman on the destroyer USS Cogswell in the South Pacific. Cogswell earned 9 battle stars, was never hit by enemy fire and was given the honor as the first American warship in Tokyo Bay for the Japanese surrender in September, 1945.

After the war, Henry Bosworth had a successful career as a daily newspaper reporter and columnist in Boston — including a story he wrote about an orphaned boy with muscular dystrophy that caught the attention of Hollywood and a closed-circuit TV episode that "became the forerunner of the Muscular Dystrophy Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon," the Patriot Award winner told thousands of Legionnaires gathered at Milwaukee's Convention Center.

Launching The Quincy Sun in September 1968 was the realization of a dream for the elder Bosworth.

"For the next 40 years, The Quincy Sun was Henry's labor of love. He was a tireless worker, dedicated publisher and devoted community leader ... Henry treated all with fairness and respect," Robert said of his father.

In 2009, the founding publisher passed away at age 84, and his son assumed leadership of the publication, working with his sisters, and following their father's vision.

"One of the cornerstones of The Sun's coverage has been veterans and The American Legion. Quincy is a very active city when it comes to local veterans. There are parades, memorial observances, ceremonies and other veterans-related news stories that The Sun has covered since our beginning."

Bosworth thanked the community's veterans and veterans groups for their part in the national award. "Veterans are an important cornerstone of the community and deserve recognition for everything they have done to defend our nation's freedom and to help build and sustain the fabric of cities and towns."

Bosworth reflected on two memorable photos taken during the coronavirus pandemic that captured some of his father's values.

"I think about taking photos at the 100th birthday party for Dean Schaeffer, a local World War II Marine Corps veteran. One photo shows Mr. Schaeffer standing in salute as neighbors, local firefighters and police, Boy Scouts and others marched by his house on Veterans Day 2020, as a bagpiper played the Marine Hymn. Another photo shows Mr. Schaeffer and his wife of 73 years, Evelyn, beaming from ear to ear when he was presented a patriotic birthday cake. It was one of those small-town celebrations that Norman Rockwell could have painted for the cover of the Saturday Evening Post."

Bosworth, a member of Sons of the American Legion Squadron 294, also spoke of attending and covering a wreath-laying ceremony at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, by a former World War II POW from Quincy, Bob Noble. The ceremony took place on April 9, 2015, on National Former POW Recognition Day, which also happened to be the 70th anniversary of Noble's release from enemy captivity.

"The solemn ceremony for those of us who witnessed it is something we will never forget."

"Every week, there is coverage of The American Legion and veterans in The Quincy Sun," says American Legion Past National Commander John P. "Jake" Comer, a subscriber, who presented Bosworth with a Sons of The American Legion cap and shirt during the award presentation onstage at the Wisconsin Convention Center.

As is common for weekly newspapers, Bosworth is publisher, editor, writer, photographer and promoter of local events and activities in the community. The paper commonly runs 32 pages or more a week, with a small staff, and fulfills a website that is equally devoted to local coverage.

Besides his father, Bosworth also thanked his wife, Amy, and the Sun's staff for their support and dedication in publishing the Sun every week.

The Quincy Sun will begin its 55th year in circulation this month.

"The Quincy Sun has been able to share the stories of ... veterans for more than 54 years because of one man's vision, Henry Bosworth," the award winner said. "I like to think that Quincy is a better place today because of The Quincy Sun, because of our veterans, because of Henry."

"He would have greatly appreciated this honor but would have underscored the fact that none of this is possible without the support the paper has received for more than a half century.

"Henry liked to say, 'The Quincy Sun shines in Quincy.' But nobody shined brighter than Henry Bosworth."

MA Becomes Seventh U.S. State To Ban Child Marriage

Following Gov. Baker's Ceremonial Bill Signing Sept. 7, Advocates, Survivors And Legislators Celebrate The End Of Child Marriage

Gov. Charlie Baker memorialized the official ban on child marriage in Massachusetts Sept. 7. Following the ceremonial bill signing, advocates dressed in white and wearing veils, with arms chained, gathered in the State House to celebrate and to call for an identical ban in the 43 states that still allow marriage before age 18 – even though minors typically cannot file for divorce or even enter a domestic violence shelter.

"Thank you, thank you, Massachusetts, for eliminating a nightmarish legal trap and human rights abuse that destroys girls' lives," said Fraidy Reiss, a forced marriage survivor and the founder/executive director of Unchained At Last, the nonprofit that led the Coalition to End Child Marriage in Massachusetts and that helped organize the celebration. "Thank you, Rep. Kay Khan and Sen. Harriette Chandler, for your fierce leadership on this issue over the last six years, and thank you to the advocates and survivors who refused to give up until we got here. But our work is not done. To the remaining 43 states where child marriage, an archaic, sexist, dangerous practice, remains legal, we are headed your way next."

The legislation passed earlier this summer as part of the state budget, based on legislation introduced in each of the last three legislative sessions by Rep. Khan and Sen. Chandler.

"An Act to end child marriage in Massachusetts is a great step forward that now protects young women and girls from entering into a marriage contract before the age of 18, the age of majority," said Rep. Khan. "It has been my great honor to lead the charge, along with Senate President Emerita Chandler and Leader Paul Donato in partnership with many of my colleagues, in ending child marriage in Massachusetts. I would like to express my gratitude to the many legislators, advocates and organizations who were incredibly dedicated champions throughout the six years it took to complete the passage of the bill."

"After years of effort, I am proud that child marriage will now be banned in Massachusetts," said Sen. Chandler. "This law will protect young people across the Commonwealth from harm and abuse. I am grateful for the leadership of my co-sponsor Representative Khan, for the Governor and his support, and for Unchained At Last and their indomitable commitment to ending child marriage across our country."

According to a 2021

study by Unchained, nearly 300,000 children – a few as young as 10 – were married in the U.S. between 2000 and 2018. Within this time-frame, 1,246 children were married in Massachusetts, and 83% were girls wed to adult men an average of 5.15 years older. Of those children, 59 were under age 16 and therefore not old enough to consent to sex.

Massachusetts now joins Delaware, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Minnesota, Rhode Island and New York in ending all marriage before age 18, without exceptions.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Sept. 30, 1868, the first volume of Louisa May Alcott's beloved coming-of-age book "Little Women" is published. Alcott dedicated most of her life and writing to supporting her family after her father's failure at running a school.

• On Sept. 28, 1901, Ed Sullivan, who will become the host of the long-running TV variety program "The Ed Sullivan Show," is born in New York City. During the peak of its popularity in the 1950s and 1960s, Sullivan's program showcased a wide range of entertainers.

• On Oct. 1, 1920, Scientific American magazine reports that the rapidly developing medium of radio would soon be used to broadcast music. Experimental concerts were being conducted from the Radio Laboratory of the Bureau of Standards with local radio operators being used to see if the transmissions could be heard hundreds of miles away.

• On Sept. 27, 1930, Atlanta golfer Bobby Jones wins his fourth major tournament of the year, making him the first person ever to win the Grand Slam of golf. Jones had the picture-perfect swing of every golfer's dreams, despite never having taken a lesson.

• On Sept. 26, 1945, Lt. Col. Peter Dewey, a U.S. Army officer with the Office of Strategic Services in Vietnam, is shot and killed in Saigon. Dewey was the head of a seven-man team sent to Vietnam to search for missing American pilots.

• On Sept. 29, 1954, Willie Mays, center fielder for the New York Giants, makes an amazing over-the-shoulder catch of a fly ball hit by Cleveland Indians first baseman Vic Wertz to rob Wertz of extra bases in game 1 of the 1954 World Series. The catch has gone down as one of the greatest in the history of baseball.

• On Oct. 2, 1965, a team of scientists invent Gatorade, a sports drink to quench thirst, in a University of Florida lab. The name Gatorade was derived from the nickname of the university's sports teams. A coach had asked for something to help his players who were negatively affected by the heat during play, and the salt and sugar drink was developed.

Kate Campanale of Spencer, 52.2 percent to 47.8 percent. Allen outpolled Campanale in Quincy 1,550 to 1,297, or 54.08 percent to 45.25 percent. (Though they are chosen separately in the primary, Allen was running with Diehl and Campanale with Doughty.)

On the Democratic side, Salem Mayor Kimberly Driscoll won the primary for lieutenant governor with 46.9 percent of the vote statewide. Sen. Eric Lesser of Longmeadow finished second with 32.6 percent of the vote and Rep. Tami Gouveia of Acton was third at 20.4 percent. In Quincy, Driscoll finished with 5,001 votes, 56.57 percent of the votes cast. Lesser was second with 2,305 votes (26.07 percent) and Gouveia was third with 1,495 votes (16.91 percent). (Healey did not choose a running mate ahead of the primary.)

The Democratic primary included three other contested statewide races.

Andrea Campbell, a former Boston city councillor, prevailed in the Democratic primary for attorney general with 50.5 percent of the vote statewide. Brookline attorney Shannon Liss-Riordan was second with 34 percent of the vote. Quentin Palfrey of Weston, who withdrew from the race the week ahead of the election with voting already underway, was third with 15.5 percent of the vote. Campbell finished with 4,337 votes (47.42 percent) in Quincy, Liss-Riordan with 3,475 votes (38 percent) and Palfrey with 1,308 votes (14.3 percent).

Attorney James McMahon III of Bourne was unopposed in the GOP primary for attorney general; he netted 2,470 votes in Quincy. McMahon was his party's nominee for attorney general in 2018.

Diana DiZoglio, a state senator from Methuen, won the Democratic primary for the open state auditor position with 53.9 percent of the vote statewide. Chris Dempsey, a Brookline town meeting member, was second with 46.1 percent of the vote. DiZoglio received 4,576 votes (52.47 percent) in Quincy to Dempsey's 4,119 votes (47.23 percent).

Anthony Amore of Winchester, the director of security at the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum, was unopposed in the Republican primary and received 2,205 votes in Quincy. Amore was the GOP nominee for auditor four years ago.

In the Democratic primary for secretary of state, incumbent William Galvin of Boston turned aside a challenge from Tanisha Sullivan, also of Boston, 69.9 percent to 30.1 percent statewide. In Quincy, Galvin finished with 6,893 votes (73.26 percent) to Sullivan's 2,494 (26.51 percent).

Rayla Campbell of Whitman was unopposed in the GOP primary. She finished with 2,370 votes in Quincy.

The state's remaining constitutional officer, Treasurer Deborah Goldberg of Brookline, was unopposed in the Democratic primary and will not face a GOP challenger in November. She finished with 7,809 votes in Quincy in the primary.

This fall's election in Massachusetts also features races for seats in the US House of Representatives, but not the US Senate.

Incumbent US Rep. Stephen Lynch of Boston was unopposed in the Democratic primary for the Eighth Congressional District, which includes all of Quincy. Lynch received 8,186 votes in Quincy in the primary.

In the Republican primary for the same seat, Robert Burke of Milton prevailed over Hamilton Soares Rodrigues, 70.7 percent to 29.3 percent districtwide. Burke polled 2,147 votes (78.99 percent) in Quincy to Rodrigues' 546 (20.09 percent).

Seats in the state legislature on Beacon Hill are also up for grabs this year.

Incumbent Sen. John Keenan of Quincy was unopposed in the Democratic primary for the Norfolk-Plymouth District, which includes all of Quincy. Keenan received 8,020 votes in the primary.

Gary Innes of Hanover was unopposed in the GOP primary for the same Senate seat. He finished with 2,252 votes in Quincy.

Only one of the three state representatives from Quincy, all Democrats, faced a challenge on Sept. 6. In the Democratic primary for the First Norfolk District, incumbent Bruce Ayers fended off a challenge from Casey Dooley of Quincy, 78.5 percent to 21.5 percent overall. In Quincy, Ayers finished with 2,552 votes (78.98 percent) to Dooley's 674 (20.86 percent). Ayers does not have a GOP opponent in November.

Rep. Tackey Chan was unopposed in the primary in the Second Norfolk District; he received 3,909 votes. Chan will face Republican Sharon Cintolo of Quincy in November. She was unopposed in the GOP primary and garnered 1,003 votes in Quincy.

Rep. Ronald Mariano of the Third Norfolk District, the speaker of the House of Representatives, was unopposed in the primary and received 1,233 votes in Quincy. He will not have a Republican challenger in November.

The remaining contested race on the Sept. 6 ballot was the Democratic primary for Norfolk County commissioner. In that race, incumbent Peter Collins of Milton bested challenger Paul Yorkis of Medway, 74 percent to 26 percent. Collins finished with 6,856 votes (82.51 percent) in Quincy to Yorkis' 1,412 votes (16.99 percent). Collins will not have a Republican opponent come November.

In the race for the Governor's Council seat in the Fourth District, incumbent Christopher Iannella Jr., a Boston Democrat, and Helene "Teddy" MacNeal, a Boston Republican, were both unopposed in their respective primaries. Iannella received 7,642 votes in Quincy and MacNeal finished with 2,046.

Also on the ballot on Sept. 6 were incumbent Norfolk District Attorney Michael Morrissey and Norfolk County Sheriff Patrick McDermott, both Quincy Democrats. Both were unopposed in the primary - Morrissey received 8,094 votes in Quincy and McDermott 7,897 - and neither will face a Republican opponent in November.

Turnout was highest in Precinct 5 of Ward 6, which includes Squantum and part of North Quincy, where 35.23 percent of registered voters cast ballots. Precinct 4 in Ward 1, which includes Adams Shore and parts of Houghs Neck and Merry-mount, was second highest at 26.81 percent. Precinct 5 in Ward 3, which includes part of Wollaston, had the third highest turnout at 25.08 percent.

Turnout was lowest in Precinct 5 of Ward 4, which includes part of South Quincy, where 8.67 percent of registered voters cast ballots.

Stop & Shop New Food Pantry At Quincy College

In an effort to reduce hunger in the communities it serves, Stop & Shop has expanded its School Food Pantry Program by establishing its newest pantry at Quincy College, located near the brand's downtown corporate headquarters.

Stop & Shop has provided a $10,000 grant to the college to stock the new "Quincy College Cupboard," which will have food staples, snacks, and personal care items available to students year-round.

The Stop & Shop School Food Pantry Program, which supports more than 140 in-school food panaddresses food insecurity within local communities by providing thousands of students and their families with extra food assistance to ensure that kids ranging from pre-K to college don't have to go to school hungry.

Stop & Shop and Quincy College celebrated the pantry opening with a ribbon cutting Sept. 7, followed by Farmer's Market-style event, hosted by Stop & Shop, which featured fresh, nutritious local produce, free of charge to Quincy College students. Food for both the BBQ and Farmers' Market was donated by the Quincy Stop & Shop located

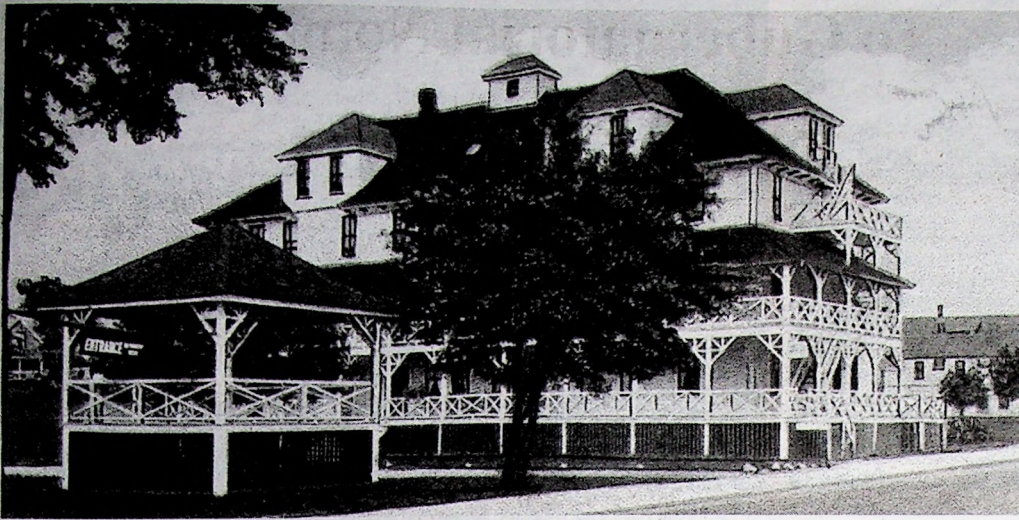

"Being able to provide consistent access to food and personal care products to students in need right in our own backyard is particularly important and meaningful to us as a Quincy-based brand," said Jennifer Brogan, director of Community Relations for Stop & Shop. "Many people may not realize the challenges that college students, in particular, may face in trying to pay for tuition, books and supplies, transportation and other expenses while in many cases also providing for a family. Our goal with the Stop & Shop School Food Pantry Program is to take one worry off their list and to provide consistent food access to help students perform their best in school."

"We're deeply grateful for Stop & Shop's generosity in helping us address challenges that can impact our students' education," said Dr. Richard DeCristofaro, president of Quincy College. "We're fortunate to have such a valued partner - and a good neighbor - eager to provide the kind of assistance that will make a difference in our community."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1930s postcard view of the Hotel Taylor that was on Fensmere Avenue at the end of Houghs Neck. Thomas Taylor and then his wife, Jane, operated this hotel for almost 20 years until it closed down in the late 1930s. It had 40 rooms all with outside windows, most with ocean views. The Taylors also operated a poolroom, bowling alley and a ballroom on their property. Built as The Fensmere Hotel in 1900, it was later named The Crystal Lake Hotel and then The Pandora before Taylor bought it. The four-acre site included a salt-water pond with a small island. Guests used the pond for canoeing. The property was later taken by the city as the site for the old Great Hill School and is now used for a public park.

READERS FORUM

Reader Shares A Few Thoughts ...

A few thoughts:

- The continued dispute over the bridge construction to Long Island is no doubt very sensitive and controversial. I hope it's fairly and justly resolved soon.

But I do know, like other readers have written, that the substance abuse problems are NOT just Boston problems, but multi city and town problems. Many of the substance abusers are from other cities and towns. The "Not in my backyard" attitudes won't get us anywhere near any solutions.

One viable solution is to have multi regional substance treatment centers, or more, around Massachusetts so Boston won't be burdened with or responsible for many of the addicted people.

- I notice that both the newest Quincy fire and police departments' graduating classes are still 99.9 percent Caucasian. Hoping the newly formed city equity and justice department will fix this diversity and inequality issue. And quickly.

- No major hospital yet in Quincy. While all these condos are being built, Quincy residents must go outside the city for major emergency / hospital care. This is a disservice to Quincy, and a disgrace of the Koch administration. This administration's priorities are screwed up.

- And speaking of screwed up priorities, why aren't more affordable housing being built?

- The MBTA mess is not over after the Orange Line shutdown's over. There needs to be a complete overhaul of management, culture, and financial oversight. And the carmen's union and other unions there must be under better government control. I hear their pension benefits are outrageous.

- The NFL should have not scheduled any games on the Sunday of the anniversary of 9-11. Why play games on such a sad, memorable day? No "minute of silence" or speech or anything else before the game or during halftime will do justice. This is at least the second time the NFL has done such a grievous mistake...the other time, as far as I know, was when President John Kennedy was assassinated in 1963, and the league played the following Sunday.

Where is the moral obligation and doing what's right?

- Please VOTE in November. Vote for what you think is best for this state and country. Future generations are depending on our judgement of doing what is right.

Long Island: Opportunity To Address Homelessness

Sometimes I just wonder where folks get their information and history from. The ongoing saga and food fight between Quincy and Boston needs to stop.

As someone who was born, raised and now lives in Boston again, I did so after living in the city of Quincy for almost 25 years. I believe Quincy is getting the short end of the stick here not just from Boston but from some vocal Quincy residents, too.

When I was about four or five years old I would often take the ferry out to Long Island with my family to visit my dad's stepfather. I don't remember much of what the place looked like back in the early '50s but I know what it looked like when I would often escort DMH clients to facilities on Long Island. The bridges scared the &%^ out of me and the site of the buildings erased any happy memories I had going out there as a child. It looked like a tsunami hit it.

Does anyone really understand how useless most of the buildings still standing out there are? Most if not all would have to be demolished. The last time I was out there was in the early 2000s and it looked disgraceful then. How much would it cost to rebuild Long Island into a brand new treatment facility or the ability to house the homeless?

Even Mayor Michelle Wu is pulling somewhat back from building a brand new bridge. The latest estimate for a new bridge is ONLY about $300 million. The City of Boston also knows that a new bridge is at least five years away and the bridge cost will continue to rise upward.

As for the island's infrastructure, how much will it cost to rebuild the island from the ground up? And what exactly does Boston have in mind? Will it be a treatment center or will it be a large facility filled with homeless beds? Do they really know yet?

Boston and Quincy should be communicating with each other because to make anything out on the island work, the two cities need to be on the same page when it comes to the logistics of how to just get folks to and from the island.

As someone who worked over 40 years for the state Department of Mental Health to go, I don't think bashing Squantum residents is the right response and neither is bashing Quincy City Hall.

We need to do something about growing homeless encampments everywhere and we need real services providing folks with alternatives to the street.

Finally quit with the distractions of growing crops out on the island. While it isn't a bad idea, it is not the reason for rebuilding this island into serving the long term needs of many folks who have lost any vision of hope.

Long Island does offer an opportunity to address the long unaddressed issue of homeless populations roaming our streets in plain sight. None of us can claim we don't see this problem. It is staring us in the face. Boston, Quincy, everywhere. We are all in this together. It will be difficult but not impossible to do.

Plan To Borrow For Parking Areas Meets Snag

The plan to borrow money this year for the purchase of off-street parking areas for Wollaston and Norfolk Downs was stymied when Alexander Smith, city auditor, advised that such a borrowing was impossible because the city had provided no qualifying fee for such takings.

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa said he would discuss with councillors that possibility of using parking meter receipts and the possibility of other reserve funds to proceed with the proposal.

In a recent public hearing, North Quincy merchants and the Chamber of Commerce urged the council to make the takings.

BETHELEM STEEL HAS 49 PERCENT OF U.S. MERCHANT SHIP WORK

Bethlehem Steel Corporation's shipbuilding division holds contracts for nearly half - 49.6 percent - of the new deadweight tonnage of merchant ships being built in American shipyards.

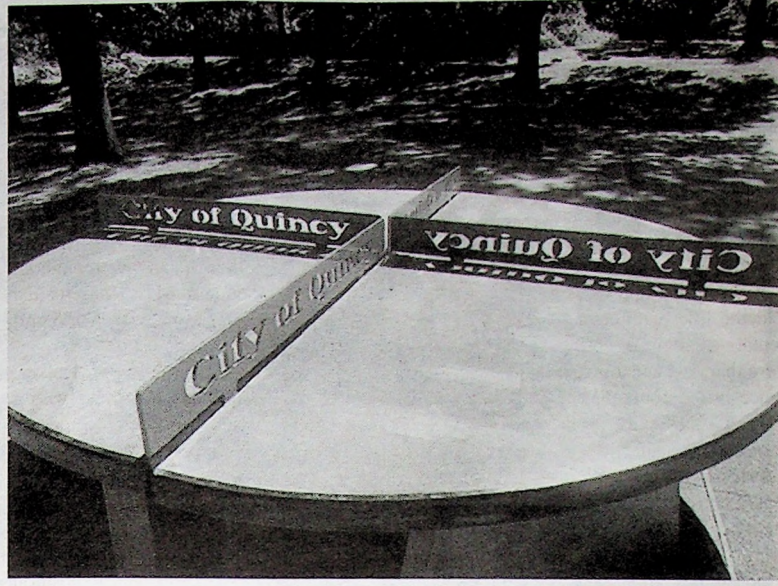

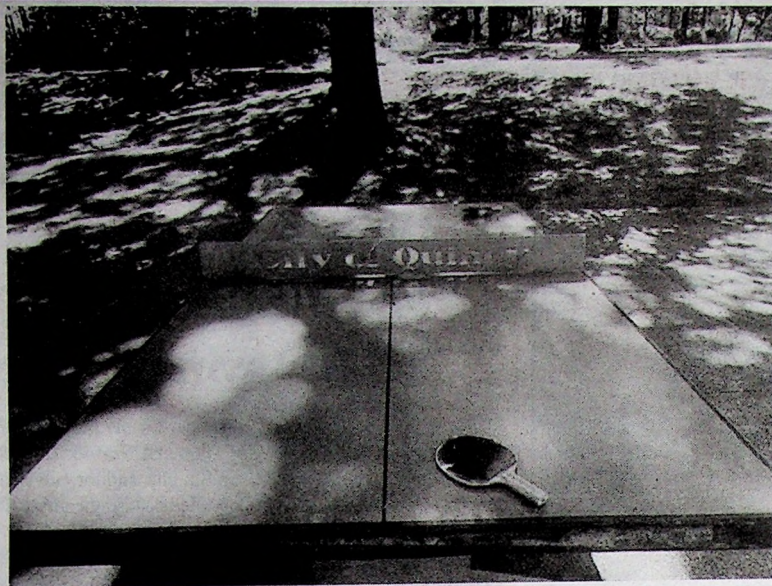

Of this total, 1,073,550 tons or 26.7 percent will be built at the Fore River Shipyard. Fore River will build 19 tankers ranging in size from 16,000 to 105,000 deadweight tons.

A keel was laid this week for the first of five 46,000-deadweight ton tankers that the Fore River Shipyard will build for the Onassis' interests.

The Quincy shipyard has six other ships in various stages of construction.

City Installs Outdoor Concrete Ping-Pong Tables

The Department of Natural Resources has installed new all-weather ping pong tables at Faxon Park and Welcome Young Playground. The concrete ping pong tables are the first outdoor, all-weather tables in the city.

At Faxon Park, there is a traditional two-player table and a four-way table to allow for more players. The tables are located at the top of the road between the pavilion and the softball diamond.

At Welcome Young, the table is located near the new tennis courts and new playground.

"We are always looking to adapt our parks to meet the needs of the people we serve," said Commissioner Dave Murphy. "We had a request come in for ping pong, did some research, and found a fun addition to our park inventory. We are always looking for new ideas to improve our park system and provide fun for people of all ages, interests, and abilities."

People are encouraged to bring their own paddles and ping pong balls, as one would do with tennis or pickleball. Tables are available on a first-come, first-serve basis and no reservations are available. Players are encouraged to limit their matches to one hour if there are people waiting to play.

'Hey Old Friend' Reunion Show At Woodward School Sept. 30

JM Productions of Quincy is celebrating its 45th season with a special reunion show titled "Hey Old Friend."

The musical cabaret production will take place at The Woodward School, 1102 Hancock St., Quincy Center on Friday, Sept. 30th at 8 p.m.

Thirteen singers from productions produced over the past 45 years have agreed to appear on stage to take part in the musical celebration. There are many numbers from shows including "Mame," "Cinderella," "Jesus Christ Superstar" and from the annual "What Christmas Means to Me" holiday production.

The main cast includes Sheila and Jen Fahey of Neponset, Ann Kenneally Ryan of Quincy and Patty O'Connell Lee of Braintree. Accompanying the singers is Music Director Sarah Troxler from Plymouth and Jesse Stiglich from Marshfield who will oversee percussion. John McDonald will be the emcee and take part in a few of the musical numbers.

Other singers include:

Kathy Teevens Fitzpatrick of Quincy, Maryjo Welch, Paul and Marybeth Kelly of Braintree, Janice Walker of Framingham, Cheri Kelly of Quincy and Cheryl Jost of Neponset. A few other surprise guests will take part in this cabaret performance.

"So many of our musical productions were staged at The Woodward School bringing us sort of full circle which is a nice gift for our cast and audiences alike, said John McDonald, producer and director.

"For over the 45 years JM Productions has presented our cabaret shows at Raffael's in Quincy as well as their facilities in Hull and Hingham," McDonald said. "The Common Market, Cella and Fox & Hounds restaurants as well as the function facility in Quincy, The Tirrell Room. We have also presented at Saint Ann's in Quincy and Neponset as well as Fontbonne and Sacred Heart in North Quincy. However, being back at The Woodward School seems most appropriate as so many of our full-scale musicals were produced there," McDonald said.

The musical revue reunion event is also a sort of a goodbye to the loyal fanbase as JM Productions will no longer be offering dinner theatre and cabaret shows. The excessive cost of food coupled with high gas prices forced the production company to close that part of the business.

Showboat Cruises from Squantum Point Park in Quincy and the Quincy Comedyfest at The Marriott will still take place in 2023.

The company will also continue to collaborate with clients who are planning small- and large-scale events.

NeighborWorks Housing Solutions Promotes Angelica Gomez To Chief Operating Officer

NeighborWorks Housing Solutions, a housing service provider in southern Massachusetts, announces Angelica Gomez as the organization's first chief operating officer (COO).

Gomez, who previously held the title of director of Rental Assistance, brings more than 13 years of experience in the nonprofit sector and specifically in the affordable housing service industry to her new role as COO. Under her leadership she will manage the programmatic operations with responsibilities that include oversight of all administrative and service delivery functions within the agency.

"It is truly an honor to be part of this incredible organization," said Angelica Gomez. "I have had the opportunity to help families access safe affordable housing. I know how important housing, education and resources are for people in our region, and I am excited to take on this role and be able to support all our programs as we continue to advance our mission and help more people in our communities."

Since 2019 NHS has grown as an organization and is now one of the leading service providers. As part of their growth strategy, incorporating the expertise of a senior level operations role will help position the organization for future growth by expanding capacity and leveraging key internal talent. NHS has five office locations throughout southern Massachusetts and now has more than 125 employees.

A graduate of Universidad de Los Andes with a Bachelor of Science degree in anthropology, Gomez received her Master of Science in Human Services from Northeastern University.

"Adding a COO position to our growing organization was part of our planning," said Robert Corley, CEO of NeighborWorks Housing Solutions. "Her extensive experience and knowledge of our programs and the population we serve, coupled with her ability to manage and lead teams make this a natural fit for all of us. This is a great opportunity for NHS."

Neponset River Cleanup Saturday

The Neponset River Watershed Association (NepRWA), along with a group of partners, is sponsoring its annual Neponset River Fall Cleanup on Saturday, Sept. 17th from 9 a.m. to noon.

Multiple cleanup sites have been designated for Canton, Dedham, Dorchester, Hyde Park, Mattapan, Milton, Norwood, Quincy, and Walpole.

Volunteers of all ages, skill levels, and physical abilities are needed to help with this important event. An adult must accompany children under the age of 12. Pre-registration is required.

"Our cleanups make a big difference in areas along the Neponset River, local streams and ponds, and parks. The work that the volunteers do is incredibly helpful in creating better habitats for wildlife and improving recreational access. Plus, it just makes everything look nicer for our communities," said NepRWA River Restoration Director, Sean McCanty.

More information about the event, including registration, can be found at www.neponset.org/cleanup.

For any questions, contact NepRWA Environmental Fellow, Eleanor Yeomans, at yeomans@neponset.org or 781-575-0354 x302.

Supporters of the Neponset River Cleanup include:

MA Dept. of Conservation & Recreation (DCR), Deloitte, Belnel Neighborhood Association, Friends of the Blue Hills, City of Boston Parks and Recreation, Edgewater Neighborhood Association, Friends of the Boston Harbor Walk, Greater Boston Trout Unlimited, Quincy Asian Resources, Inc., Earthwatch, GZA, American Rivers, Canton DPW, Milton DPW and Norwood DPW.

Can't join us this time? Consider donating to help offset the cost at www.neponset.org/donate.

The Neponset River Watershed includes the communities of Dorchester, Hyde Park, and Mattapan; Canton, Dedham, Dover, Foxborough, Medfield, Milton, Norwood, Quincy, Sharon, Stoughton, Randolph, Walpole, and Westwood.

Movie Review: 'The Invitation'

By BOB GARVER

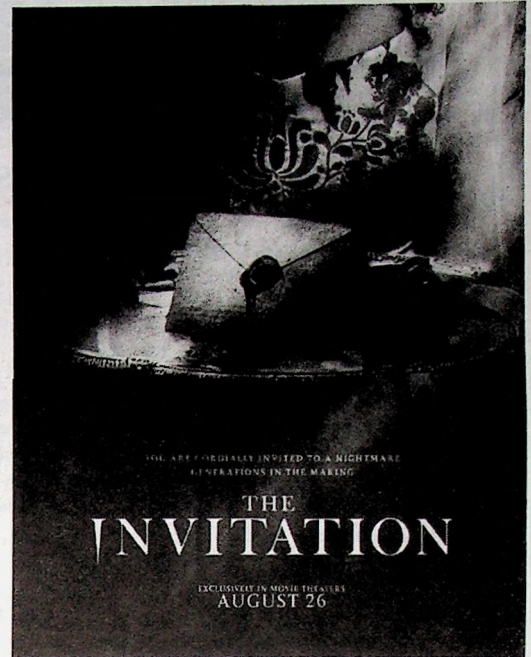

Last year, a longstanding tradition was bucked when the MCU's "Shang-Chi and the Legend of the Ten Rings" opened to an impressive $75 million at the domestic box office over Labor Day weekend.

For some reason, maybe having to do with the kids being back in school, Labor Day weekend is typically one of the worst box office weekends of the year. Not just one of the worst holiday weekends, weekends overall.

Now in 2022, things are back to relative normal, and theaters were once again nearly deserted over Labor Day weekend. The big movie was a re-release of "Spider-Man: No Way Home" from last December with $6 million, followed by "Top Gun: Maverick" from May, "DC League of Superperets" from July, "Bullet Train" from early August, and "The Invitation" from last week. I was on vacation last weekend and unable to review "The Invitation," so it gets the dubious honor of warranting a review on this ditch on the box office calendar.

The film follows Evie (Nathalie Emmanuel), a struggling caterer from New York City. She takes a DNA test and finds out she has family in England. She meets a rich cousin named Oliver (Hugh Skinner), who invites her to a family wedding at the estate of even richer family friend Walter (Thomas Doherty). Parts of the trip are like a dream come true, with luxuriousness at every turn and an extended family that welcomes her with open arms (none of the white relatives are bothered that she's African-American, owing to an interracial affair a few generations back).

Other parts are not so pleasant, like condescending butler Fields (Sean Pertwee) and standoffish bridesmaid Viktoria (Stephanie Corneilussen), though timid bridesmaid Lucy (Alana Boden) seems okay. Other parts are downright frightening, like things going bump in the night. So many things go bump in the night, as if this movie can't think of a way to drum up scares for its first hour.

It's not hard to figure out that something is amiss with the rich weirdos, especially because the movie opens with a suicide by hanging and maids keep getting yanked offscreen, never to be seen again. I thought the villains were just into run-of-the-mill ritualistic killing, but it turns out there's a supernatural element too. The mastermind behind it all is named Walt. Change the W in his name to the letter before it in the alphabet, the T to the similar-sounding D, and switch the A and L around, and you'll get an idea of what the twist is.

Once the secret is out, the movie is just plain goofy. A dinner scene marks a point of no return for any hope this movie had at dignity, plus it features a death that I felt had no place in a PG-13 movie (a last second cut-away from... well, a cut, is what technically saves it). The movie wasn't great at doing horror before with its cheap jump scares, but there was potential in its "Get Out"-meets-"Ready Or Not" setup. And Evie is a likeable protagonist, struggling to keep her humility in the extravagant setting with funny video-chat help from her best friend (Courtney Taylor).

But Walt is bland in every role: as a host, as a potential love interest, and as a villain. I won't say that secondary villains Fields and Viktoria "steal the show" exactly, but I would have preferred either of them as a sort of Big Bad at the movie's climax. It's an easy joke to say that you should decline "The Invitation," but judging by the lousy box office, you've probably been doing that anyway.

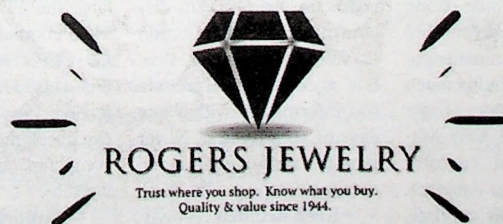

Grade: C-

"The Invitation" is rated PG-13 for terror, violent content, some strong language, sexual content and nudity. Its running time is 105 minutes.

Steak Kabobs

By MARIE

A group of my granddaughter's friends prepared steak kabobs recently and shared the recipe with me.

They cut sirloin steak into bite-sized pieces and cut up zucchini, grape tomatoes and sliced red onion and added these vegetables to the kabobs to create a delicious and savory meal at a recent cook out.

Directions and Ingredients:

Enough sirloin steak to feed guests that you have

1 zucchini, medium sized, cut in quarter-inch slices and then cut in half

1 cup of grape or cherry tomatoes - cut in half

Red onion - slice enough to add to each skewer

You begin building the kabobs with the zucchini, tomatoes, steak and then the onion.

Use kabob skewers that are at least 10 to 12 inches long.

Salt and pepper the sirloin steak before placing the kabob components on the skewers, and when the kabobs are all put together sprinkle them with olive oil or melted butter.

Grill until the meat is medium rare or well done - your preference.

These kabobs are great served with corn on the cob, summer salads and potato or pasta salads.

Homemade Granola Bars

By SUSIE

Here is a fun and tasty recipe for some homemade granola bars. These can be stored in Ziploc baggies and are so much fun to make. Have the kids join you as well!

The flax adds important nutrients and it is tasteless. Make sure you buy ground flax and always store in freezer to prevent it from getting rancid.

- 6 tablespoons pasture butter (I use Kerrygold)

- 1/3 cup coconut sugar

- 1/4 cup maple syrup (the real stuff)

- 2 teaspoons vanilla extract

- 1/4 tsp sea salt

- 2 cups quick-cooking/instant oats or organic PLAIN oats (do not use regular old-fashioned oats)

- 1-3/4 cups crispy brown rice cereal (I use Erewhon brand)

- 1/2 cup sliced almonds

- 1/4 cup flax meal

- 1/3 cup mini chocolate chips (I use Enjoy Life brand)

Instructions

1. Line a 9 x 13-inch baking pan with parchment paper and grease lightly

2. In a large pot, combine the butter, sugar and maple syrup. Bring the mixture to a boil over medium-high heat, stirring constantly. Lower the heat and simmer until the sugar dissolves and the mixture is slightly thickened, about 2 minutes. Remove the pan from the heat and stir in the vanilla and salt.

3. Add the oats, rice cereal, almonds and flax meal to the pan and fold with a rubber spatula until well combined.

4. Transfer the mixture to the prepared pan and press down lightly with a rubber spatula to even out. Sprinkle the miniature chocolate chips over top, adding more or less to suit your taste, and press down firmly with the spatula so the chips stick. The mixture should be tightly compacted in the pan.

Place the pan in the refrigerator for 1-1/2 - 2 hours to cool.

How To Deal With Debt Collectors

Nonprofit Credit Counseling Agency Explains Consumers' Rights, Offers Tips To Combat Harassment

With Americans struggling with decades-high inflation and other economic uncertainties, millions have turned to debt to make ends meet. Adding to the stress of many are seemingly endless calls from aggressive debt collectors.

"Nobody should be afraid to pick up their phone or be on the receiving end of bullying or threatening language. But relief is much closer than many people may think," said Amy Maliga, a financial educator with Take Charge America, a nonprofit credit counseling and debt management agency. "When you understand how debt collection works, you can leverage that knowledge to find peace of mind as you work to become debt-free."

The Fair Debt Collection Practices Act (FDCPA) protects individuals from debt collector harassment and dictates how collection agencies can interact with people. To help individuals regain control of debt collector calls, Maliga shares five key actions to take:

- Check their facts. Ask for written verification of the debt amount and additional details, including the name of the original creditor and instructions on how to dispute the debt if you question its validity. By law, collection agencies must provide this information within five days of your request. Never provide sensitive financial details over the phone.

- Keep detailed records. Keep track of every letter, email and phone call you have with debt collectors. These will come in handy if you must file a complaint or prove you paid the debt if another agency tries to collect on it in the future.

- Take control of communication. You have the right to dictate how debt collectors can communicate with you. You can make the request via email or letter. The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) offers letter templates to help communicate with debt collectors in writing.

- File a complaint. If a collection agency remains aggressive or blatantly violates the FDCPA, you can file a complaint online with the CFPB or by phone at 855-411-2372. You will receive email updates and can check the status of your complaint on the CFPB website.

- Explore credit counseling. If you're overwhelmed by collection calls, you may find relief with nonprofit credit counseling. After going through a free credit counseling session online or over the phone, you'll receive a free action plan with customized solutions, possibly including a debt management plan.

Annual Cost Of New Car Ownership Crosses $10K Mark

AAA Launches Online Calculator To Help Car Buyers Budget For Next Vehicle Purchase

For over 70 years, AAA's Your Driving Costs has provided members, consumers, and the media with information on the average costs of owning and operating a new automobile.

According to the latest research from AAA, the average yearly cost to own and operate a new vehicle in 2022 is $10,728, or $894 per month; a considerable increase from 2021, when the average yearly cost was $9,666 or $805.50 per month. Not surprisingly, fuel prices are the most significant factor pushing this year's average annual price tag.

Massachusetts residents may be paying even more than the national average. In the Bay State, the annual cost of vehicle ownership is about $250 higher than the national average. Bay Staters face more expensive finance charges, costlier repairs and maintenance, elevated gas prices and higher taxes and fees.

"Consumers are paying more attention when purchasing a new vehicle since everything is more expensive right now," said Mary Maguire, AAA Northeast director of Public and Government Affairs. "With the recent increase in fuel prices, more and more people want to know the true costs of owning a car beyond their monthly payment."

In the most recent analysis, AAA evaluated nine categories of vehicles - consisting of 45 models - to determine a new vehicle's average annual operating and ownership costs. AAA selects top-selling, mid-priced models and compares them across six categories: fuel, maintenance/repair/tire costs, insurance, license/registration/taxes, depreciation, and finance charges. The study assumes a five-year ownership period, with the vehicle being driven 15,000 miles/annually (or a total of 75,000 miles).

For this year's study, fuel costs were projected based on a weighted average of the first five months of 2022. During that time, fuel prices averaged 17.99 cents per mile or $3.999 per gallon. Gas prices have seen a dramatic climb since early March, and, as a result, the cost of vehicle ownership has increased accordingly since the Your Driving Costs evaluation was completed. Because of the high variability of fuel costs, consumers are considering alternative ways to budget for the cost of vehicle ownership. One way they do this is by exploring electric vehicles as an option for their next car purchase. In fact, a recent AAA consumer survey found the main factor behind Americans' desire to buy an electric vehicle is to save on fuel costs.

This year's Your Driving Costs analysis reveals that electric vehicles have the second lowest annual ownership costs behind small sedans. For comparison, an electric vehicle owner will spend about 4.0 cents per mile to charge their vehicle at home, while the owner of a gas-powered vehicle will spend an average of 18.4 cents per mile to gas up. Assuming both drive 15,000 miles/year, it would cost approximately $2,700/year to fuel the gas-powered vehicle and $600/year to charge the electric vehicle. A difference of $2,100 annually.

Beyond fuel savings, electric vehicles have the lowest maintenance, repair, and tire costs. This is because gas-powered vehicles require additional maintenance such as oil changes, air filter replacements and inspection of mechanical components not present in electric vehicles. Additionally, electric vehicles have the lowest fees due to federal and state rebates offered to buyers of new electric vehicles as a purchase incentive.

New this year, AAA launched an online Your Driving Costs calculator to provide a more interactive and personalized breakdown for car shoppers. This online tool employs the same methodology as AAA's annual analysis of new car ownership. It allows users to view comprehensive cost analyses of a specific vehicle by category to determine ownership costs that best align with their budget. Data is available for new and used vehicles (five model years back), and consumers may customize the results based on location and other personal driving tendencies.

Consumers can also use the AAA Car Guide to learn about the latest automotive technology and research vehicles that best suit their needs. AAA's car buying program is a research tool to assist consumers search for available vehicles in their region, locate dealers, and compare pricing. AAA urges car buyers to know all the expenses associated with ownership to negotiate the best deal for their budget and recommends consumers follow these steps before purchasing:

- Start early! Due to limited inventory, consumers may have fewer choices regarding a specific vehicle model. They may have to wait for delivery or even pre-order the vehicle of their choice.

- Obtain pre-approval from their financial institution (e.g., Bank, Credit Union, AAA, etc.) before discussing finance rates with the car dealer. By getting pre-approval, they will have a threshold of the best lending rate they'll pay. Buyers can use their pre-approval to negotiate if the dealer offers a higher rate.

- Create a budget and factor in the different elements of ownership before purchase - not just monthly payments. Other factors to consider when making the budget include insurance, gas, routine maintenance, etc.

- Typically, three negotiations occur when purchasing a vehicle - the cost of the car, the finance rate and the trade-in value. Keep each transaction/negotiation separate from the other.

Social Security Matters

Ask Rusty – About The ‘Restricted Application For Spousal Benefits Only’

By RUSSELL GLOOR

National Social Security Advisor at the AMAC Foundation, The Non-Profit Arm of the Association of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: You wrote an article about a man who was collecting spouse benefits but was applying for his own benefit at age 70, under an old law. What are the circumstances surrounding that gentleman's ability to collect spousal benefits? Why was he eligible? And was he working clear up into the age of 70 before applying for his own Social Security? Signed: An Inquiring Mind

Dear Inquiring Mind: The “old law,” under which the gentleman in the article was collecting only a spousal benefit from his wife, is no longer available to anyone born after Jan. 1, 1954, which means it is largely unavailable to those applying for Social Security today. Here's how the “old law” worked:

It was once possible for someone who reached their full retirement age (FRA) of 66, who had not yet applied for their own Social Security, and whose spouse was already collecting SS retirement benefits, to file a “restricted application” to collect only spousal benefits. This enabled a higher earning spouse to claim a spouse benefit (only) without claiming their own SS retirement benefit, thus allowing the latter to continue to grow in value. That resulted in the higher earning spouse collecting half of their spouse's FRA benefit, at the same time maximizing their personal benefit to be claimed at a later age (usually at age 70).

Such was the case for the gentleman in the article you refer to – his wife had claimed her own SS retirement benefit earlier, and the husband had filed a restricted application for spouse benefits only. The husband collected a spouse benefit from his wife while his own SS retirement benefit continued to grow. Now, as he was turning 70, he was ready to switch to his maximized personal SS retirement benefit. His work status was insignificant because he had already reached his full retirement age when he filed the restricted application, but by delaying the claim for his own SS benefit he earned Delayed Retirement Credits (DRCs). The DRCs made his personal age 70 benefit 32% higher than his benefit would have been had he claimed it at age 66.

This strategy wasn't documented as a specific option under old Social Security law; rather it was a “loophole” which many took advantage of because Social Security law at the time didn't prevent it. In other words, Social Security law, as written years ago, allowed anyone who had reached their full retirement age to file a restricted application for spouse benefits without filing for their own benefit. That (along with another option known as “file and suspend”) was considered a loophole and was eliminated by the “deemed filing” provision of the Bipartisan Budget Act (BBA) of 2015. The BBA stipulated that those who turned 62 after 2015 (those born after January 1, 1954) would, whenever they filed for benefits, be automatically deemed to be filing for all Social Security retirement and spousal benefits available to them at the time. And that essentially eliminated the “restricted application for spouse benefits only” option for anyone born after January 1, 1954. The gentleman in the article was born in 1952, thus eligible to take advantage of the loophole. Today, only those born before January 2, 1954, who are not yet collecting Social Security but have a spouse who is, are eligible.

Baker-Polito Administration Distributing 3.5 Million Free At-Home COVID-19 Tests for MA Residents

The Baker-Polito Administration has announced plans to distribute 3.5 million free at-home COVID-19 rapid antigen tests to municipalities to make available to residents across the Commonwealth.

The new municipal distribution plan builds on the successful distribution of over 2 million rapid tests to municipalities earlier this spring. In addition to the rapid antigen tests, municipalities can also request essential PPE, including KN95, surgical and children's masks.

Allocations to municipalities will be based on population size. Municipalities can request tests and PPE through Sept. 16, and shipments are expected to arrive before mid-October. These distributions of free tests build upon statewide contracts in place since December 2021 that allow municipalities and eligible entities to order test kits directly from manufacturers at state-negotiated prices.

An additional 1.5 million rapid antigen tests will also be made available to food banks in the Commonwealth, to reach those who are most vulnerable. More than 1.5 million tests have already been distributed to food banks and local organizations that support access to food across Massachusetts this year.

“This distribution of CO-VID-19 rapid antigen tests builds on our work over the past several years to partner with municipalities to ensure residents can protect themselves from the virus,” said Governor Charlie Baker. “Rapid tests, along with other resources like vaccines, boosters and treatments, provide residents with the tools they need to manage COVID-19.”

“Throughout our time in office, we have focused on collaborating with our municipal partners, and that has been especially true throughout the pandemic,” said Lt. Governor Karyn Polito. “This latest distribution of rapid tests is part of our ongoing work to provide local officials with the tools and resources they need to protect their residents and communities.”

Since December 2021, the Administration has distributed more than 25 million rapid antigen tests for Massachusetts residents, municipalities, and a broad range of educational, health, human services, food banks, shelter, correctional, senior, low-income housing, and other community-based organizations. Sept. 7th's announcement marks the latest step in the Administration's effort to provide residents across the Commonwealth

On Sunday, Sept. 4, at approximately 5:15 a.m., Officer Waterman and Officer Callanan were dispatched to a home on Hamilton Avenue for a breaking and entering in progress. While enroute, dispatch informed officers that the reporting party could hear someone making noises on the first floor.

Upon Officer Waterman's arrival to the home, he noticed that the first floor was in complete darkness. He then heard something and ran up to the front door which was locked. He then went back to the front yard and saw that the basement light was on and there was a person in the basement. Officer Waterman announced his presence and identified himself as Quincy Police and told the individual to stop.

Officer Waterman ran around to the back yard where the basement door was completely open. He saw the male attempting to flee through a basement window. Officer Waterman ran back around to the front of the house, in an attempt to catch the suspect, but the suspect then ran out of the house through the back door. Officer Waterman then ran back to the rear of the home, where he observed the suspect attempting to jump the fence. Officer Waterman took control of the suspect's shoulder and guided the suspect to the ground. The suspect continued to resist and attempted to flee.

However, Officer Callanan and McNeil were now on scene and officers were able to place the suspect under arrest. Officers conducted a pat frisk of the suspect and found a flashlight and wallet in his possession. The suspect also had a backpack that contained stolen computers.

Officer Waterman then went and spoke to the homeowners. The homeowners stated that they woke up to noises that they believed to be a person inside their home. The resident then called the police and was told to stay in their room until officers arrived. Within minutes of the call coming in, Officer Waterman had arrived on scene. Officer Waterman observed damage to the home that was caused by the suspect.

The 33-year-old suspect from Dorchester was arrested and transported to the station. He was charged with knowingly resisting arrest, defacing personal property, larceny of property over $1,200, and aggravated breaking and entering to commit a felony (placing the victims in fear).

Great work!

with the tools needed to manage COVID-19.

"Testing is one critical tool for managing COVID-19, rather than COVID managing us, and we remain committed to ensuring that all Massachusetts residents have access to free tests," said Secretary of Health and Human Services Marylou Sudders. "Taking an at-home test is part of the steps that individuals can take - including staying up to date on vaccines, staying home when sick, and wearing masks as needed - to protect themselves and reduce the spread of COVID-19."

Massachusetts is a national leader in vaccination rates with over 84 percent of eligible residents fully vaccinated and over half of adults boosted. The Department of Public Health advises residents to observe the following protocols to protect themselves and their loved ones from COVID:

- Get vaccinated and stay up to date. The best protection against COVID-19 is staying up to date on COVID-19 vaccines. That means being fully vaccinated and getting a booster. Fully vaccinated people are much less likely to get sick or spread the virus that causes COVID-19, especially if they have their booster shot. Learn more at mass.gov/CovidVaccine.

- Take a test for COVID-19. Testing for COVID-19 is widely available, including at-home rapid tests. Get tested if you have symptoms. Learn more at mass.gov/GetTested.

- Get treatment. If you test positive, talk to your doctor right away about treatment options that are available for people who have mild to moderate symptoms. Learn more at mass.gov/CovidTreatments.

- Stay home when you are sick. Staying home helps prevent the spread of illness.

- Mask up if you need to. Learn more at mass.gov/MaskUpMA.

- Enable MassNotify on your smartphone. Learn more at mass.gov/MassNotify.

- Wash your hands. Wash your hands often with soap and warm water. Or use hand sanitizer with at least 60% alcohol.

Lawmakers Could Ban Revenge Porn

By SCOTT JACKSON

Sen. John Keenan is hopeful lawmakers on Beacon Hill can pass legislation in the coming months that would outlaw revenge porn, saying he's heard "tragic, tragic stories" from victims who have dealt with it.

The House earlier this year unanimously approved legislation that would prohibit revenge porn, but the Senate did not act on the matter before the end of formal sessions on Aug. 1. Gov. Charlie Baker has also identified revenge porn as one of his priorities, calling for legislation to ban it in his State of the Commonwealth address in January.

If approved, Massachusetts would join the 48 other states that have already banned revenge porn, the nonconsensual sharing of sexually explicit photographs and videos.

"The revenge porn bill is a piece of legislation that does basically what the title suggests — it prevents revenge porn," Keenan, a Quincy-Democrat, said in a recent interview.

"We've heard many instances where people have consensually agreed to filming and photographs and while they've agreed to the filming, they have not agreed to the release of it. So oftentimes when there is a breakup, the revenge is to release those images or those films and there is a loophole in our law that does not permit the prosecution for that. Some believe that there are other laws that may apply, but specifically there is nothing to prevent the dissemination of those images if the person depicted in there consented to them being created.

"What the revenge porn bill would do is basically say...even if the person consented to the taking of those images, you cannot release them without the person's consent. And if you should release them without the person's consent, it would be a criminal offense."

Under the House bill, A first offense would be considered a misdemeanor and carry a penalty of up to 2 1/2 years in prison, a $10,000 fine, or both. Second or subsequent offenses would be felonies punishable by up to 10 years in prison, a fine of no more than $15,000, or both.

Keenan said he has heard from victims who have been affected by revenge porn.

"I've heard just tragic, tragic stories from individuals who have had to deal with this," he said. "There was one young woman — and this was reported in the Boston Globe — who ultimately consented to taking a picture of herself and sharing it with an individual and then it was disseminated in the school and it was just a horrific situation.

"Unknown to her parents, she tried to handle it. She went and met with the individual and she was raped. She did not say anything at that point. When she went to talk to the district attorney's office about the issue of the images, that's when she revealed she had been raped by the same individual. What her and her family went through during that entire ordeal was just terrible and there was really limited avenues for them to proceed in order to press charges against this individual."

"I had another person who was in a relationship and his partner took a picture of him consensually and they broke up and the partner posted it online," Keenan continued. "The victim is pretty high profile where that person lives and was just incredibly distraught over the situation and had to confront the other individual and the other individual's family about it. Ultimately it was taken down, but when that person was sharing the story, it was pretty obvious what a terrible, terrible, terrible situation it was."

Because there is no law against revenge porn on the books currently in Massachusetts, Keenan said he believes it happens more often than is reported.

"We read about it fairly frequently and I think there is so many more cases that we don't read about because people don't come forward because they know there is really no way to address it," he said. "This would be a way to close that loophole and hold people responsible for sharing images when they should not be — when they do not have consent to do so."

While the legislature's formal session is over, the bill can still be approved in an informal session before lawmakers' current term concludes at the end of the year. Keenan was hopeful the bill would be approved in the coming months.

"We worked on it quite a bit towards the end of the session. We've worked with the office of the child advocate since. We've gotten input from the attorney general's office since. I have met with Rep. Roy from the House of Representatives — he's the sponsor in the House," Keenan said.

"We are hopeful that there is a chance that this could pass in an informal session given that it passed the House unanimously. Obviously, the Senate would have to pass it without objection, and that's what we're working on now."

"It's something that should be done."

Quincy Homestead Archeology, Excavation Findings Saturday

Presented By PAL John Kelly;

Co-Hosted By Quincy Historical Society, Colonial Dames Of Massachusetts

In the fall of 2019, the Public Archaeology Laboratory (PAL) of Pawtucket, R.I. began digging test pits and trenches on the grounds of the Quincy Homestead on Butler Road. Careful research had been conducted in the preceding years to increase the chances that these trenches and pits would yield treasures. By all accounts, the dig was a tremendous success.

On Saturday, Sept. 17 at 2 p.m., lead investigator from PAL, John Kelly, will present the findings of that excavation. This presentation will be cohosted by the Colonial Dames of Massachusetts and Quincy Historical Society and will take place at the Adams Academy. The program will be introduced by Carol Holliday of the Colonial Dames.

While no silver or gold was found on the site, the dig uncovered 3,198 artifacts, evidence from the earliest days of human settlement in the area. From pre-colonial stone tools to 19th century glassware and ceramics, each of these items are in their own way priceless — as they serve to answer vital questions about life in Quincy in days gone by. Some even prompt new questions worthy of further research.

Accompanying the talk will be a special temporary exhibit displaying some of the artifacts found. They will remain on display at the Historical Society until Nov. 3.

This event is open to all and free to attend.

Quincy Firefighters Retirement Banquet Oct. 17 At Florian Hall

The Quincy Fire Department, IAFF Local 792 will hold its annual retirement banquet Monday, Oct. 17 at Florian Hall, 55 Hallett St., Boston.

Cocktail hour begins at 6 p.m. and dinner starts at 7 p.m. This year's honorees are:

Deputy Chief Paul Griffith, Captain Daniel Gorman Jr., Lieutenant Steven Infascelli, Lieutenant Myles O'Malley, Jr., Firefighter Paul Burke, Firefighter William O'Neil and Firefighter Patrick Ryan.

All active and retired members are invited to attend and honor the careers of these members.

Local 792 congratulates this year's retirees and their dedicated years of service to the residents of Quincy.

Stevie Abbot To Appear In Video Saturday In Times Square

Stevie Abbot of Quincy will appear in the bright lights of Broadway on Saturday, Sept. 17, as part of the annual National Down Syndrome Society (NDSS) Times Square Video presentation.

The one-hour video of roughly 500 photographs includes children, teens, and adults with Down syndrome from all 50 states. These collective images promote the value, acceptance, and inclusion of people with Down syndrome in a very visible way.

The photo of Stevie was selected from more than 2,400 entries in the NDSS worldwide call for photos. His photo will be shown on two JumboTron screens in the heart of Times Square, thanks to the support of ClearChannel Outdoor. The two screens are located above Dos Caminos restaurant in Father Duffy Square.

The presentation will be live streamed on the NDSS Facebook page from 9:30-10:30 a.m. Sept. 17.

The Times Square Video presentation will be followed by the New York City Buddy Walk in Central Park. The walk has taken place in New York City since 1995 as part of the National Buddy Walk Program. Buddy Walk events are held in hundreds of cities across the country, as well as select international locations.

For more information about the New York City Buddy Walk on Sept. 17 or the National Buddy Walk Program visit www.ndss.org.

Register O'Donnell Promotes Foreclosure Assistance Programs

Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell is reminding Norfolk County homeowners who are struggling to pay their mortgage or facing foreclosure that there are consumer programs available to help them out.

There has been a noticeable increase in notices to foreclosure and foreclosure deeds recorded in 2022.

"The COVID-19 pandemic caused a great deal of upheaval in all our lives," O'Donnell said. "Some more than others. Some of our neighbors have been furloughed or lost their jobs all together due to the economic impact resulting from the pandemic. In the beginning of the pandemic, policy makers at the state and federal levels recognized the impact the pandemic was having on the ability of many to pay their mortgages and rents. A moratorium was put in effect which suspended foreclosure.

"The moratorium expired in October 2020 but unfortunately the number of recorded foreclosure notices continues to increase."

To help those facing issues paying their mortgage, the Registry of Deeds has partnered with several non-profit agencies by promoting their services when it comes to mortgage modification and foreclosure programs.

Homeowners can contact Quincy Community Action Programs, (617) 479-8181 x-376 or NeighborWorks Housing Solutions at (508) 587-0950 x-46. Another option available is to contact the Massachusetts Attorney General's Consumer Advocacy and Response Division (CARD) at (617) 727-8400. Making use of funds from the recent nationwide state-federal settlement over unlawful foreclosures, the Massachusetts

Attorney General's Office implemented a statewide foreclosure prevention and borrower support initiative entitled the HomeCorps. If you are facing foreclosure, the HomeCorps program may be able to help. The HomeCorps Hotline at 617-573-5333.

"All of these agencies provide a range of assistance from helping with the mortgage modification process, providing legal services, and offering credit counseling," O'Donnell said. "For more information on these and other support options, go to the Registry's website www.norfolkdeeds.org, click on the Support tab and then click on the subtab that mentions Foreclosure Assistance. The state website also has a page devoted to foreclosure assistance at <https://www.mass.gov/service-details/preventing-foreclosure>."

O'Donnell also warned homeowners against falling prey to for-profit companies who offer loan modification and credit counseling services but charge an exorbitant fee.

"Even in these times, unscrupulous for-profit foreclosure relief and mortgage modification companies are in some cases preying on vulnerable homeowners. They make unrealistic promises and charge a lot of money for doing so. If one of these companies is telling you something that is too good to be true, it probably is. Please check out any for-profit foreclosure relief and mortgage modification company before entering into a contract with them," O'Donnell noted.

Concluding his remarks, O'Donnell stated:

"With the foreclosure moratorium rescinded, many individuals and families are still faced with some very difficult decisions. It is truly tragic that so many are having issues paying their mortgages and facing foreclosure through no fault of their own. If you or a loved one are in this situation, it would be prudent to sit down with a reputable non-profit agency such as Quincy Community Action Programs, NeighborWorks Housing Solutions or the Massachusetts Attorney General's office to discuss what options are available.

"The Registry is always glad to help those facing a mortgage delinquency or foreclosure crisis by directing them to one of these fine agencies. Each of these organizations are there to serve your needs in a professional and honorable manner."

Consumer Notification Service At Norfolk Registry Of Deeds

Taking note of publicity relating to "deed theft," Norfolk Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell reminds Norfolk County homeowners about the Registry's Consumer Notification Service.

Deed theft can take different forms. The most common type of fraud preys on people who are in danger of losing their property, usually rental property, through foreclosure. The owners are told that they qualify for a "short sale" – a process where the foreclosing lender settles for less than the amount owed or the mortgage – and that if they sign the deed over to a third party, they can avoid the foreclosure. The owner signs a deed over to the third-party scammer, not realizing they are still responsible for the debt, and the scammer, rather than negotiating the short sale, collects and keeps the rental payments until the lender eventually forecloses. Another form of deed theft preys on the elderly homeowner who, subject to undue influence often by a family member, signs over their property, not realizing what they are signing.

Less common is forgery, where a scammer fakes a homeowner's signature on a deed and records it in the registry of deeds. A forged deed is not valid and conveys nothing. If a buyer or a lender rely on a forged deed and don't do their due diligence on a property's title, they are out of luck. They, not the legitimate property owner, will ultimately lose any money paid to the thief. Forgery is a felony in all fifty states, punishable by jail time and heavy fines. The court may also require restitution for damages caused by the forgery, such as the costs of clearing the title.

There are companies that now offer paid subscription services that will periodically monitor the public records and notify an owner if a deed has been recorded transferring the ownership of their property. It is not title insurance and usually will offer no additional services if a fraudulent transaction has taken place.

"Our mission at the Registry of Deeds is the safety and security of all property records," O'Donnell said. "We recognize that there are unscrupulous individuals that may try to take advantage of the property rights of others. We have initiated a Consumer Notification Service at the Registry, a free service whereby subscribers sign up to be notified when any document is recorded under their name. While I can't speak to the paid subscription services, we have confidence in our 'alert' or notification system."

Information on "Consumer Notification" can be found on the Registry website, www.norfolkdeeds.org under the heading, "Services." The Registry Customer Service Department can assist anyone who would like to set up the notification for their property.

"I want to reiterate that our free notification service, like the paid services, does not protect against fraud but will at least alert an owner if a fraudulent deed has been recorded," O'Donnell said. "Owners should be always be aware of what they are signing when it comes to any document that may affect the title to their real estate and should scrutinize any company that promises to alleviate debt if you sign over a deed to them. In Massachusetts a deed should always be signed in front of a notary public. Massachusetts notaries are obligated to request identification from the party signing the deed."

O'Donnell said anyone who has questions about the notification service should contact the Registry's Customer Service Center at 781-461-6101, Monday through Friday between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

"Our trained staff are more than willing to answer any questions you may have," O'Donnell added.

Quincy College Appoints Four To Board Of Governors

Quincy College has appointed four new members to fill vacancies on its 13-member Board of Governors.

They are:

• Phillip Chong, president and chief executive officer of Quincy Asian Resources, Inc. (QARI). His prior experience features roles in management consulting and venture capital for pharmaceutical, telecommunications, healthcare and higher education organizations including five years as Director of Strategic Initiatives at Simmons College.

• Sean Galvin, a principal in the Galvin Companies, a construction, development and property management firm headquartered in Quincy. He is a lifelong Quincy resident and an active, long-time supporter of a number not-for-profit charitable organizations both in the city and throughout the region.

• Donald MacKinnon, the founder of Hingham-based Atlantic Development, a real-estate development company whose completed projects throughout New England are valued at more than a half-billion dollars and have led to the creation of thousands of jobs and millions of dollars in new real estate tax revenue for their host communities.

• Kyle Swist, vice president of Talent Management at Quincy's Granite Telecommunications who has more than a decade of human resources experience specializing in recruitment, learning and development, employee retention and performance management.

"It's a pleasure to welcome our new Governors, each of whom brings unique knowledge, fresh perspectives and deep community involvement in support of our mission," said Dr. Richard DeCristofaro, president of Quincy College. "We also acknowledge the contributions of our outgoing governors - Attorney Paul Barbadoro, Barbara Clarke, Rev. James Hawker and Joseph Shea -- and sincerely thank them for their many years of service exemplified by their commitment to our students and our community."

Quincy College Governors each serve six-year terms, act as advocates for the institution, have certain statutory governance and oversight responsibilities and demonstrate an overall commitment to the mission and purpose of the institution.

Hamel-Lydon Chapel To Present Lights Of Remembrance Event Oct. 13 At The Tirrell Room

After more than two years of pandemic mania, quarantining and wearing masks, Hamel-Lydon Chapel and Cremation Service of Massachusetts will be presenting an annual event to honor and remember those who have passed away through the years.

Hamel-Lydon's "Lights of Remembrance" event will be a special time and space for individuals and families to come together to honor the memories of loved ones. The inaugural remembrance event will be held on Thursday, Oct. 13, at the Tirrell Room, 254 Quarry St. in Quincy from 5 to 8 p.m.

All are welcome to come with a photo of their loved ones, decorate a bag and light a candle of remembrance.

Funeral Directors Christopher Goulet Sr. and Michelle Lydon, owners of Hamel-Lydon Chapel, said:

"The Lights of Remembrance inaugural event will be dedicated to those individuals we have lost due to COVID-19. However, the event is open for all to attend in honor of lost loved ones."

Friends and partners who help to make this event possible include Boston Love Letters, Chrissy Dalstrom Photography, the Cristiani family, Ginger Betty's, Harbor View Video, Holbrows Flowers, Justice Lydon & Co., M. Solomon Casket Company, Michael G. Bellotti, Michael W. Morrissey, Quincy Memorials, Red Tassel Strategies, The Tirrell Room, Vintage Strings and Whitman Burial Vault Company.

For more information about the Lights of Remembrance event, call Hamel-Lydon Chapel at (617) 472-5888 or visit www.hamellydon.com/lights-of-remembrance.

St. Agatha Parish Celebrates Centennial With Mass, Gala Concert

St. Agatha Parish will be continuing their centennial celebration with a Mass celebrated by Sean Cardinal O'Malley and a Gala Centennial Concert and Reception featuring renowned Irish tenor Ronan Tynan.

Cardinal O'Malley will preside at the 11:30 a.m. Mass on Sunday, Sept. 25. Priests and religious who served in the parish have been invited to join with current and former parishioners for the Mass. All are welcome. Check the parish website at www.stagathaparish.org for more details.

On Friday, Oct. 5, the parish will host a Gala Centennial Concert and Reception. Dr. Tynan will perform in the Upper Church at 7:30 p.m. The reception will be held in the Parish Center and will begin at 6 p.m. Tickets, which start at $50 may be purchased at www.stagathaparish.org. Business sponsorship opportunities are available.

"We are so pleased to have Cardinal O'Malley and Dr. Tynan help us celebrate 100 years of St. Agatha Parish," said Rev. William B. Palardy, pastor of the parish. "It says a great deal about the parish's legacy of spiritual and temporal service to Milton and Quincy."

Torre Dei Passeri Celebrating 100th Anniversary

The Torre Dei Passeri Mutual Benefit Society will celebrate its 100th anniversary on Saturday, Oct. 1, at 6 p.m. with a banquet at the Sons of Italy Hall in Quincy. The celebration will feature a full dinner, brief ceremony, remarks from special guest Ron Della Chiesa, entertainment and dancing.

Founded in 1922 by Italian immigrants residing in the Quincy Point area, the Society was originally established by several men whose goal was to assist families in times of sickness and death. It was during these years when federal and state social welfare programs were nonexistent and local assistance was extremely minimal. If a family fell into difficult times, they relied on their neighbors and community members for support. The organization was named after the town Torre De' Passeri, located in the province of Pescara in Abruzzo region of Italy, where most of the founders had relocated from.

The idea for the Society was born when one of the founder's neighbors employed as a laborer was injured. Unfortunately, he could not pay for medical treatments, suffered gangrene poisoning, and died, leaving his wife and young children destitute.

The community decided to recruit others in raising funds for the man's burial and living expenses for his widow and young children. Accomplishing this task, it was decided to continue this type of financial assistance for neighbors and community members who fell into similar hardships through membership in the Society.

Today, 100 years later, the Torre Dei Passeri Mutual Benefit Society, Inc., continues to provide the same support. Additionally, members maintain ongoing communication and visits with individuals who are sick and/or housebound. The society's location is 252 Washington Street, where you will find members raising monies, socializing, networking, and playing on the outdoor bocce courts.

Many organizations established for the same reasons have long since dissolved and been forgotten. Not Torre Dei Passeri, as it is still working toward the same principles by providing its members the same assistance as it did over a century ago.

The Car Doctor Is In ... On New Home WATD

Ask John Paul: AAA New England's Car Doctor
Senior Manager, Public Affairs and Traffic Safety

I am scheduled for a coolant change at 100,000 miles. Currently I have 96,500 miles on my 2014 Toyota Camry. What is a reasonable price for this?

Today in most cases this is considered a drain and refill. The price of the coolant varies but $25 for a gallon is average and a complete cooling system which includes a drain and refill, inspect for leaks, check for proper cooling system operation takes about an hour and a half. Depending on labor charges $175-$225. AAA also has a repair estimator that can give you a range of different repairs and service.

My neighbor has a 1956 Ford T-bird with a 312 V8 engine and he wants me to change the oil for him but wasn't sure what weight oil to use. What would you recommend?

I would use a good quality 15W-40, maybe Shell Rotella available most everywhere. This oil seems to be very popular with old-car enthusiasts and works well with flat tappet engines.

I just purchased four new tires on July 12, 2022. They were sold and installed at the local Land Rover dealership. I drove 6.5 miles and found the ride to be "bumpy/slight vibration" so I thoroughly examined the tires. I am a mechanic. I found after learning about the expiration date of tires that my "new tires" are six years old. In addition, they are not the same speed rating. Is there a law that protects us from this safety hazard?

Currently there are no laws that prohibit selling old tires. There has been talk over the years in states with vehicle inspection that tires over six years old should fail inspection. The tire trade organization the Rubber Manufacturers Association recommends that tires over 10 years old should be carefully inspected and replaced if they show signs of aging. I suspect your new tires may have been "take-offs" from another vehicle and sold to you as new. I would go back to the dealer and tell them you want the proper new tires for your vehicle.

I am thinking about possibly looking around for an outdoor car cover that would be good with the change of seasons that we have here in New England. I was wondering if you have any thoughts or ideas in this regard.

If it is always best to use a quality cover and not a tarp. A quality cover is typically multilayer allows the car to breathe and protects the paint. If the car is a vintage variety with aging paint, even a good car cover can wear off the paint. On my own car, I have had good luck with the covers from Empire covers <https://www.empirecovers.com/>. I keep a car outside in Florida and the Empire cover held in place during a hurricane last year.

What is going on with your radio program? I have been listening to you for years on several stations. Did you retire from radio, seems like one day you just weren't there? I did listen to your podcasts, but I like it when people call in. My Saturdays are not the same without the Car Doctor.

Thanks for the kind words. The last station I was on was sold, but after a few weeks off I'm back on the air on 95.9 FM or online on www.959watd.com Sunday morning from 11-noon. The program will be live, so call in to say hello.

I recently purchased a very small RV and plan to spend as much time in it as possible. With my job work from home or anywhere policy I don't need to be tied to my office. As I travel, I am concerned about keeping the two batteries fully charged, since one powers some of the "house" accessories. I'm considering a small generator or even a portable battery, non-gas generator. Any thoughts on this or should I just carry a jump pack in case of emergencies?

There are some small, fairly quiet and relatively lightweight gas generators (but you need to carry a gas can) made by Honda, Generac and even Harbor Freight that could keep you going and recharge the batteries. I have never tried the battery generators, although EcoFlow seems to be popular. Recently I have been evaluating a battery maintainer from CTEK called the CS Free. What makes it interesting it can maintain/charge your batteries, without being plugged in to house current. It can also recharge its internal battery by plugging it in to a 120-volt outlet, 12-volt outlet and by using a folding solar panel. The solar panel charges the CS Free and the CS Free charges and maintains your batteries. This is all done without making a sound. By the way I always keep a portable jump-pack in our family cars as well as portable air compressors, just in case of emergencies.

I'm looking for an SUV it is just me, my spouse and a labradoodle. Seems like everything I look at is too small, way too big or too macho. I also want to be able to tow our small boat in the summer and snowmobiles in the winter. I have looked at Jeeps, nice but concerned about reliability, The Hyundai Santa-Fe just didn't feel right, and the Kia Telluride and Ford Bronco were too big and hard to get. I also looked at the Ford Explorer and Dodge Durango and they weren't a fit either. I hate to sound like the Princess and the Pea, but when you are spending up to $50,000 for a vehicle it needs to make you happy be the right fit.

Vehicles are a personal choice, and you are correct it makes sense to buy what you want that fits your needs. Something I honestly almost forgot about until I just evaluated it recently was the Honda Passport. This is a five passenger SUV and now can be packaged with the TrailSport trim which adds additional off-road capability and has a bit more rugged design. With eight inches of ground clearance, 280 horsepower from its V-6 engine and the ability to tow 5,000 pounds, the Honda Passport in standard or TrailSport trim could be the perfect fit.

I have a 15-year-old Chevrolet truck with a V-8 engine, and it cranks forever before it starts. I have replaced the fuel pump, fuel pump relay and the computer and it still doesn't start correctly. I have spent way too much money and my wife said just get rid of the truck. I don't have a lot of skill with voltmeters - is there something else I should be looking for?

Replacing parts without testing circuits can result in spending a lot of money with no results. Start with looking at power and ground to the fuel pump relay. The first place I would start is to look for a grounding block and check the connections. I have seen on multiple occasions that where several items share one ground and a little corrosion is enough to cause problems.

My 2017 GM truck has both low beams out. One day they worked and one day they didn't. I have a friend with a fancy computer scanner and he said there were three codes. The codes were for headlight control circuits. What kind of problems am I looking at?

I suspect there is nothing wrong more than the bulbs need replacing. Headlight bulbs have pretty specific hour ratings and they both likely failed within a few days of each other and you never noticed until both failed. Start with some basic testing at the bulbs.

In a past column, you had a reader that was looking for a mid-sized SUV that had some off-road capability but wasn't too "macho". I believe you recommended the Honda Passport and maybe a Subaru. I'm actually looking for something a bit more rugged. I looked at Jeeps, but there are just too many of them. I looked at the Ford Bronco, but there is a long wait and dealers are marking them up too high. What am I missing?

JOHN PAUL
AAA's Car Doctor

You are correct there are a lot of Jeeps because they are still wildly popular, and some people are paying $10,000 or more for a Bronco. One vehicle that may work is the Toyota 4Runner. This is a solid vehicle that although matured has not lost its truck roots. The 4Runner is very capable off-road and has all the latest safety and convenience technology. The non-turbo-charged V-6 engine may seem dated by contemporary standards, but it makes 270 horsepower and can tow 5,000 pounds. The interior is comfortable and the seats supportive. Fuel economy on the other hand is terrible with an EPA rating of 17 MPG combined city/highway. If fuel economy isn't a concern the 4Runner by Toyota may be a good fit.

I have a 2010 Hyundai Elantra and the passenger side air conditioner vent has cold air coming from it, but the driver's side is warm. This is a basic car, so no fancy AC system with dual temperature settings. What is wrong?

The first place to start is to inspect the air conditioner pressure readings. At 12 years old the system has probably lost some refrigerant. Since the air conditioner evaporator is located on the passenger side if in fact the system is low on "charge" it is possible the passenger side would be cooler than the driver's side air. If this is the case, the system should be checked for leaks. If there appears to be no leaks, recharging the system should get the air conditioner fully operational again.

My 2015 Ford Escape has the oil light on. The engine is quiet, and I replaced the oil sender unit with a Ford part and the light is still on. Any ideas?

Although your ear tells you the engine is quiet, I would still want to check the oil pressure with a mechanical gauge. You should see 30-60 pounds of oil pressure at 2,000 RPM. In this case I did a little research on AllData (the technical database I use) in their community page. I found a very similar concern. In this case the BLU/BRN wire from the oil sender to the car's computer was shorted against the engine block near the starter motor. When the wire was repaired, the light operated normally. This would be a good place to start.

I just purchased a classic 1994 Chevy Caprice wagon for my beach house. This boat of a car is powered by a fuel injected 5.7-liter V-8 engine. It is like driving around on your sofa. I love this car; I can put my wind surfing stuff in it and carry just about anything. The one problem in the engine stumbles, but never stalls. I have replaced the sparkplugs and the spark looks strong and bright and the check engine light is off. The engine runs smooth so I'm guessing compression is good. Any ideas?

If this was being diagnosed in a shop, the next step or perhaps the first step would have been to check for engine codes and fuel trim reading. The next step would be to look at fuel pressure. In some cases, technicians will hook up a fuel gauge and mount it where they can see it. Then drive the car until it stumbles. With the ignition ON Engine OFF there should be 41.0 to 47.0 pounds of fuel pressure. With the engine running there should be 3-10 PSI less. When driving the car if the fuel pressure drops off considerably the issue could be a clogged fuel filter or weak fuel pump.

I have a 2015 Kia Optima with 66,000 miles on it which has had all its recommended maintenance by a dealership. It drives really well except in one respect. At slower speeds in city driving, I experience a noticeable engine vibration that is sustained whenever the tachometer remains very narrowly at or close to 1,100 RPMs. It feels like the engine is lugging, if that's the correct term. It relents only if I let up on the gas or depress the pedal further to accelerate past the vibrating. In other words, I can't maintain a steady speed at 1,100 RPM without the shake. I actually did mention this to the dealership at my 60,000-mile service, but they did nothing to diagmatch will cover the cost of the training, which will be done by a private company, as well as overtime costs.

"This would bring in a private company to teach us technical rescue skills. We would be looking to train 20 firefighters and do 14 days of training," Jackson said. "Backfilling overtime is part of this grant, as is bringing in a private company to teach us these skills."

Councillors passed the appropriation in a 7-0 vote. Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci and Ward 6 Councillor William Harris were not at Monday's meeting; Palmucci was listed as a co-sponsor of the request along with Mayor Thomas Koch.

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan Jr. said the FEMA grant would save local residents money while also providing firefighters with additional skills that can be used to protect residents.

"This seems like a great deal because the city is getting a huge amount of money and bang for its buck," he said. "This saves the taxpayers a lot of money and it also gives them an extra layer of protection."

Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy said councillors are always looking out for Quincy's first responders.

"When we're dealing with public responders, period - police, fire, whatever it is in the city of Quincy - the council has been very good," he said. "When it has to do with just enhancing a program or a grant to assist with the health and safety of the firefighters, I don't think there is any question. I'm in full support of this."

Councillor Anne Mahoney said the training would be helpful as development continues in Quincy.

"I think this is great, especially with some of the development we have in the city right now," she said.

"I hope it's something that doesn't happen very often so you guys don't have to go to it, but it is something that concerns me when I hear about them."

Council President Noel DiBona thanked the department for the effort it made in obtaining the grant.

"This is a great for the city, anytime we can piggyback off FEMA...to help us here in Quincy, Massachusetts," he said. "Thank you for your time and energy and your grant-writing group and team and all the firefighters to take us to the next level."

DiBona also noted the 21st anniversary of the terrorist attacks of Sept. 11 was on Sunday. The city held a memorial observance at Fire Department headquarters that morning.

Jackson thanked those who attended the ceremony for their presence.

"We appreciate everyone showing up," he said.

Solemn Ceremony Marks 9/11 Attacks

By SCOTT JACKSON

Firefighters, police officers, residents and elected officials gathered together at Quincy Fire Department headquarters on Sunday morning to observe the 21st anniversary of the terrorist attacks of Sept. 11, 2001.

Nearly 100 people were present for the solemn ceremony.

"The saying attached to this day is 'Never Forget' so it's good to see year after year people coming out in numbers to support us," Fire Chief Joseph Jackson said. "We appreciate it very much."

On that day 21 years ago, 2,977 victims were killed at the World Trade Center in New York, the Pentagon outside Washington, D.C., and in Shanksville, Penn. The victims included 343 members of the New York City Fire Department, 23 New York City police officers, and NY/NJ 37 Port Authority police officers.

Two of the victims were former Quincy residents, Mayor Thomas Koch said at Sunday's ceremony. Kevin P. Connors, age 55, a graduate of the US Naval Academy and senior vice president for Euro Brokers, was working on the 84th floor of the South Tower of the World Trade Center that morning. Susan A. MacKay, age 44, a vice president for TJX Companies, was onboard American Airlines Flight 11, which struck the North Tower of the World Trade Center.

"When you think about almost 3,000 people, two from Quincy is pretty remarkable," the mayor said.

The acts of bravery that took place morning were incredible, Koch said.

"I'm sure many of you have seen the remembrances that have been on television. National Geographic has done an incredible job of really memorializing a number of the stories that came out of that horrific day. The acts of bravery were just incredible," he said.

"As we saw, as people were trying to flee the building, emergency personnel

- police and fire - running into the building, evacuating people, and of course it becoming their sacred grave."

Koch also remembered the nation's response to the attacks, as Americans rushed to enlist in the armed forces.

"I also have memories of the weeks that followed, the amount of young people that flocked to the recruiting stations, because at that point we were at war," he said. "Once again, it showed this nation does the right thing. That our men and women wanted to serve and wanted to go after and hold responsible those people that did that to the innocent people of this country."

Koch then thanked Quincy's firefighters and police officers for the work they do on a daily basis.

"I want to thank our firefighters and our police officers, [who] do an incredible job each and every day for us," he said. "They treat people with compassion, with dignity, and get the job done, so thank you for that."

The mayor next thanked the nation's service men and women for keeping peace around the world.

"Let us also be mindful of those that continue to serve their nation, whether they're here at home or all kinds of locations all around the globe," Koch said. "Be mindful that if not [for] our men and women in those locations around the globe, there would be a lot more activity by some of the evil tyrants that run some of the nations of the world, so we're grateful for their service as they serve to keep the peace."

Speaking at Sunday's ceremony, US Rep. Stephen Lynch noted he was elected to Congress during a special election held on Sept. 11, 2001, and was soon assigned to the House's oversight committee, which reviewed the events of that day. He recalled listening to transmissions firefighters made to each other while they were inside the World Trade Center that morning.

"We listened during that rescue effort as they would find civilians and let their colleagues know...that they were sending people down out of the way. But I could not ignore the reality that, just by the words they were using and the manner of their dialogue, that they knew. They knew that many of them were not coming out but yet they moved on. They kept coming up those stairs," Lynch said.

"The last transmission, I'll never forget, was from the 82nd floor of the South Tower, before that came down. Eighty-two floors. I don't know if you've ever tried to do something like that with 75 pounds on your

Not Guilty Plea In Robbery That Ended In Deadly Shooting

A Dorchester man accused of taking part in the armed robbery that ended in the death of a Quincy man was arrested on a Quincy District Court warrant while leaving a Boston residence Monday morning, according to Norfolk District Attorney Michael W. Morrissey.

Dwayne D. Harper, 28, of Bellevue Street in Dorchester, entered a plea of not guilty to masked armed robbery (firearm); kidnapping for extortion; attempt to commit a crime (to wit: home invasion); and assault to rob while armed with a firearm.

Quincy Police were called to the area of 5 Crown Dr. at approximately 12:40 a.m. on Aug. 18. There they found Jordan Wiggins, 32, a resident of an apartment at that address, with obvious gunshot wounds. He was transported to an area hospital but did not survive.

"Quincy Police and State Police detectives attached to the Norfolk District Attorney's Office have been working since the August shooting to put the pieces of this case together," Morrissey said. "While the investigation is continuing, we were able to obtain a warrant for this defendant. Boston Police were able to take him into custody at roughly 9 a.m. today (Monday) as he exited a residence in the city."

Assistant District Attorney Robert Stewart moved to have the defendant held without bail under the Massachusetts dangerousness statute. The Court set Sept. 20, 2022 as the date for the dangerousness hearing.

"Harper is held without bail until that time," Morrissey said. "And our investigation continues."

Lighthouse Fellowship Global Celebration Features International Potluck Sept. 17

Lighthouse Fellowship, 73 Newbury Ave., North Quincy, will hold its annual Global Celebration Sept. 12-19 and hear from Christian ministries around the world which they support.

One of the highlights will be the International Potluck on Saturday, Sept. 17 at 6 p.m. All are welcome. There will be food from Afghanistan, China, Germany, Iran, Cape Verde, Italy and Cameroon.

Guest speaker will be Paul Daniel, an Iranian Christian who for many years has run a refugee center in Athens, Greece called Father's Heart. They daily welcome, serve and love people from many nations including Afghans, Iraqis, Iranians and Kurds. Lighthouse has had the joy of sending teams there each year to help distribute food, medicines and clothing, and provide times of fun and relaxation for the women and children.

In 2014 Daniel set up a refugee camp to help people fleeing Kobane, Syria during the ISIS attacks. In 2015 he went into that war zone to rescue people who had returned to Kobane and were attacked again. He has been fearless in helping Kurds in Iraq as well. Daniel has a passion to share God's love and that has taken him to some of the most inhospitable places. Yet in desert areas and on mountain tracks, he has had amazing divine contacts. You will be inspired and challenged by what God is doing in that part of the world.

Daniel will also share his spiritual journey from a strict Muslim family to that moment when the love of his Heavenly Father overwhelmed him.

Pastor Mike Fehan is delighted that He can introduce others to this humble servant of God. "Every time I'm with Daniel I am struck by what God can do with one man who is fully committed to serving Him. I see him selflessly running towards a war zone and danger, feeding 500 people for dinner in a camp or getting an ambulance for a Syrian town. He is determined to bring hope and life where everything seems hopeless. There's now a medical unit and bakery in Kobane because of his bold desire to share God's love with all people."

Consider coming on September 17 to hear more from Daniel and what God is doing in the Middle East. He will also speak at the Sunday service, Sept. 18, at 10 a.m. After each service there is a time of refreshment and an opportunity for fellowship.

During the week people are also welcome to join the morning devotional time on Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 7 a.m. On Wednesday mornings at 10 a.m. there is a women's Bible study in person at the church and on zoom. Tuesday evening meetings alternate between Men's Group and All Church Bible study. On Sept. 20 it will be the all church study. There is also a home group study in Braintree. Call the church for details: 617-847-4444 or email Lighthouse.quincy@gmail.com.

Lighthouse Fellowship believes in the power of prayer. If you have a prayer request let us know by calling or emailing. A prayer group will receive your request and pray for you.

Gas Prices Down 12 Cents

The average gas price in Massachusetts is down 12 cents from last week ($3.92), averaging $3.80 per gallon.

Monday's price is 50 cents lower than a month ago ($4.30), and 72 cents higher than Sept. 12, 2021 ($3.08). Massachusetts' average gas price is 9 cents higher than the national average.

The national average price for a gallon of gas fell seven cents in the past week to reach $3.71, a level not seen since the beginning of March. The primary reason for this decline is the recent lower cost for oil.

Rally Day At Quincy Point Congregational Church

Sunday, Sept. 18 is Rally Day at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St.

This season the church will celebrate courageous people of faith. The Rally Day theme is based on two books by Shirley Raye Redmond, "Courageous World Changers" and "Brave Heroes and Bold Defenders."

Worship begins at 10 a.m. worship (live streamed or in the sanctuary). View the service via the live stream on the Quincy Point Congregational Church's Facebook or YouTube pages or at www.quincypointcong.org.

The sanctuary is air-conditioned and accessible to all with designated parking and an elevator on the Abbey Road Side of the church.

Rally Day also means that the children will leave worship to visit their classrooms and teachers. If you wish to receive registration information about the Youth Group, Confirmation, Sunday school or the nursery, contact the church office at 617-773-6424 or office at quincypointcong.org. You can also visit the church social media or see the schedule for the year, listed on the church website <https://www.quincypointcong.org/christian-education>, or just come on down to the church on Sunday.

It is also the Third Sunday of the month, so the church will be collecting donations of personal care items for Interfaith Social Services. Examples of items needed are: toothpaste, toothbrushes, dental floss, unscented bar soap, shampoo, conditioner, shaving cream, razors, deodorant, diapers (sizes 4,5,6), unscented baby wipes, tissues and toilet paper.

Collection boxes are located in the Narthex and by the elevator entrances.

'Joe Finn Building' Dedicated To Housing Advocate

located on the two upper floors. Twenty of the housing units in the building are currently occupied, and the remaining two will be filled on Oct. 1.

The renovation of the building – including the restoration of the masonry on its original façade, which had been covered up with paneling decades ago – was partially funded by a $2 million grant from the city's Affordable Housing Trust.

Koch was one of a number of current and former city officials – including several of Finn's colleagues on the City Council – present at the dedication that morning. Koch said the creation of new affordable housing units has always been part of the plan for the redevelopment of Quincy Center.

"It's a pleasure to be part of such a happy occasion. With the life of the city, and so much going on in the city, so much development we see, and part of that development discussion for years has been, how do we try to make things affordable for people who otherwise couldn't afford market rent," Koch said.

The mayor said that Finn was one of the staunchest advocates for creating affordable housing in Quincy Center during his time on the City Council. He said that Finn – who was formerly the leader of Father Bill's & MainSpring and is now the president and executive director of the Massachusetts Housing & Shelter Alliance – remains an advocate for affordable housing.

"I have great admiration for Joe and, as I said earlier on, he really was the conscious on this issue in Quincy for a long, long time," Koch said. "Now I view he's the conscious in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts on this issue."

Koch added that the Boston area is sorely in need of new housing to meet demand.

"I know there is times when this administration gets criticized perhaps for what some perceive as overdevelopment," he said. "The fact of the matter is we are tens of thousands of units short in the metropolitan area of Boston to meet the needs of housing – and that's all types of housing."

"Keep in mind that the additional market-rate housing also helps to stabilize rents. It is about getting more affordable units in play, but it is also about the greater number to help stabilize the market rents."

The building at 1433 Hancock St. is owned by Leo Martin and Sy Marcus. Martin is a developer who is always looking to help people, Koch said.

"I would suggest that Leo is one of the folks that doesn't necessarily need an ordinance to help people that are on the margins, because I know how he operates his buildings and he helps a lot of people on a regular basis," Koch said.

The mayor said the renovation to the building, in particular the restoration of its original brick façade, makes it an asset in Quincy Center.

"This beautiful masonry was all covered up," Koch said. "It was a very unsightly, homely building and Leo, as part of the development, restored the masonry, the cornices, the beautiful storefront. It fits beautifully in the downtown."

"Its role and mission is really to provide housing, but it's also an asset now to the downtown."

Tom Fabrizio, the executive director of the Affordable Housing Trust Committee, said the project at 1433 Hancock St. is one of the more important ones the board has tackled over the past 13 years.

"I've been fortunate to be involved with this committee since 2009, and this is one of the more important projects," Fabrizio said. "To have these affordable units in the downtown speaks vol-

Nearly 3,000 lives were lost in the terrorist attacks. The Quincy Fire Department has held a 9/11 ceremony every year since that tragic September morning 21 years ago. The department sent several firefighters to Ground Zero at the site of the fallen World Trade Center Towers. They also attended many of the funerals held for the more than 300 New York City firefighters who lost their lives responding to the attacks.

MacKay was a passenger on American Airlines Flight 11 that was hi-jacked and struck one of the towers of the World Trade Center in New York City. She had lived in Westford at the time with her husband and their two children. Susan grew up in Quincy, was active in the Sacred Heart Youth Organization and graduated from North Quincy High School in 1975. On Sept. 11, 2001, she was flying to Los Angeles with co-workers from TJX Companies - a discount apparel and home fashion retailer - to open a new store on the West Coast. Connors, age 55, was a graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy and senior vice president for Euro Brokers. He was working on the 84th floor of the South Tower of the World Trade Center that morning.

Quincy Football Blanks Bishops In Opener, 21-0

By TOM JOYCE

Usually, when a team pitches a shutout, good things happen.

That was the case for the Quincy High football team in their season opener last Friday night at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

The Quincy Presidents played sharp defense and enjoyed some success on the ground against Archbishop Williams enroute to a 21-0 win.

"I'm pretty proud of this group right here," Presidents head coach Kevin Carey said. "We had a lot of bumps tonight and we'll look at the film and see what we can do to fix those, but we stepped up when we needed to. I saw some great things happening. But they cramped up, we cramped up. That right there, the kids taking care of their bodies and things like that. Obviously, it's early in the season and it's hot out. They haven't played at a level like that yet. It's a learning lesson."

"That's a good football team," he added of his opponent. "They're gonna compete in their league if they keep playing like that."

With the exception of the Presidents' first drive, the first half was a defensive battle.

The Presidents had some early success on the ground. They moved the ball more than 60 yards in 11 plays on their first drive of the season. And that included more than 50 yards on nine run

The Presidents spread the ball around; five different players had carries. Jacey Ham (4 catches, 62 yards) started them off with a first-down run on a sweep, but Gabriel Rodrigues (21 carries, 152 yards, 3 TDs) had the bulk of the team's runs on the drive. Like Ham, Kevin Gray also had a run exceeding 10 yards to the outside.

Rodrigues picked up 22 yards on six carries on the first drive of the game, including a three-yard sweep for a touchdown with 5:17 remaining in the quarter.

This gave the Presidents a 6-0 advantage.

After that, no team put up any points in the first half.

On its first drive of the game, Archbishop Williams fumbled and lost possession. This came a couple of plays after the team crossed midfield thanks to a 25-yard completed pass.

The Presidents reached the opposing 12-yard line on the ensuing drive but were unable to score. A 27-yard pass completion from quarterback Andrew Novak (6-for-9, 72 yards) to Ham on a rollout got the team to the opposing 15 on third down; this came after Novak picked up seven yards on the ground. However, tough run defense from Archbishop Williams prevented the Presidents from going much further. On fourth-and-seven, the Presidents allowed a turnover on downs due to an incomplete pass intended for a target in the end zone.

The two sides then traded possessions and a few minutes into the second quarter, Archbishop Williams looked like it would have a three-and-out and punt. However, that wasn't the case. Instead, the team faked a punt and had a 13-yard rush. It was one of three fourth-down conversions for Archbishop Williams on the drive; the other two came on a 2-yard and 10-yard pass respectively.

Eventually, Archbishop Williams stalled out. Stephen Gallant got a two-yard tackle for a loss on a run, QUINCY'S COREY CHAPARRO (#11) and Mason McDonough (#52) point to the Presidents having possession after forcing a fumble in the Presidents' 21-0 win over Archbishop Williams last Friday night at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

NQ Football Smothers Somerville, 44-0

By TOM JOYCE

When your special teams unit scores more points than the opposing team's offense, that's usually a good indicator of which team is going to win.

It was for the North Quincy High football team last Saturday night.

The Raiders had a dominant performance against Somerville at home. Nate Caldwell had two special teams touchdowns as the Raiders (1-0) cruised to a 44-0 victory in their season opener.

"There's three phases of a football game and we work on all of them," Raiders head coach Ryan Craig said. "They all have equal importance. Nate Caldwell is a special player. He made some moves. We can put them in position, but the kids made some plays."

The Raiders offense was sharp from the start. They opened the game with the ball on the 35-yard line after Somerville booted the opening kickoff out of bounds. The Raiders enjoyed some success in the air on the game's first drive with sophomore quarterback Mikey Galligan (5-for-7 passing, 106 yards) completing three passes on four attempts for a combined 51 yards. This included a 25-yard touchdown

QHS Presidents Welcome A New Tradition Sept. 23-24

On the weekend of Sept. 23-24, Quincy High School will ring in a new tradition: Roll Hats Weekend.

Billed as the new QHS rallying cry, "Roll Hats!" pays homage to the legendary Presidents top hat that has represented generations of QHS graduates over the years. The term, modeled after the University of Alabama's, "Roll Tide!", is meant to bridge students of today with alumni from years ago. For those concerned, Roll Hats will not replace the Presidents nickname or its current logo designed by former QHS Principal Frank Santoro - it will only act as another way to help build school pride.

The weekend is the brainchild of retired QHS teacher and football coach Bob Noble. Coach Noble worked as the QB coach at Hingham High School for several years and saw the great success the school had in building school spirit and unity with their homecoming weekend. Over the past several years Noble, along with many QHS alumni, helped develop the idea of bringing something similar to Quincy under former Principal Larry Taglieri and that idea has blossomed under new QHS Principal Keith Ford.

"Quincy High School has so much to offer and the kids are amazing. On top of that, Veterans' Memorial Stadium is one of the best facilities in the state and is perfect for the weekend that's planned," Noble said.

QHS Roll Hats Weekend will kick off on Friday Sept. 23rd when the QHS girls volleyball team takes on Plymouth South (JV at 4 p.m.; varsity at 5:30 p.m.). Before the game at 4 p.m., all former members of QHS girls volleyball—from the 1980s, 90s and beyond—all the way to 2022, are invited to the QHS Café in the high school for light refreshments and to reminisce with former teammates and to cheer on this year's team. At different points during the games, each era will be acknowledged for their decades of success.

On Saturday, the day will start off with the girls soccer team taking on Pembroke at 2 p.m. followed by boys soccer against Pembroke at 4 p.m. Both teams are building off strong starts to the season and continue to show great promise. Immediately following the boys soccer game will be a rock concert by the QHS student-led band, "Daisy." Daisy has performed all over the South Shore including C-Note in Hull and Lawn on D in South Boston.

Boys football will round out the day at 7 p.m. when they take on Westwood. The Presidents have some great weapons this year and hope to bring that strong start to Roll Hats Weekend.

As exciting as the sports will be—the stadium will be filled with more than just volleyball, soccer and football teams. The Robotics Club, STEM-Sparks Club, Drama Club and The Interact Club—among many others—will have tables set up to showcase all of the great work they're doing. There will be a jumpy house—generously donated by all members of the Quincy School Committee—face painting, prizes and many more exciting ways to have a family friendly day.

QHS senior, Amira Aitsaid, donned in her oversized Presidents top hat, will premiere as "Madame President" and bring the cameras and her microphone to each booth during the afternoon giving the student leaders an opportunity to show off all of the amazing things they're doing. She'll also toss some "Roll Hats" t-shirts into the stands for some lucky fans in attendance (t-shirts are donated by Bogan Tree).

the team threw an incomplection, and Archies had a seven-yard loss after the quarterback's knee touched the ground when being hurried by a pair of Presidents defenders. On fourth-and-19 from the 37, Archbishop Williams turned the ball down following an incomplete pass. The Presidents got the ball back with under 30 seconds in the quarter. They finished it out with a first down completion and an interception to end the first half.

The Presidents added to their lead with a touchdown on their second possession of the second half. The Presidents forced a three-and-out but ended up turning the ball over on downs on the ensuing possession after a run came up a step or two short on fourth down.

When Archbishop Williams got the ball back, the Presidents got another stop. Defensive ends Alex Rheault and Shawn Kozlowski held Archbishop Williams to short ground gains; then a tackle for a loss brought up fourth-and-five. As a result, the other team punted and the Presidents got the ball back at their own 40 and capitalized on the opportunity.

Gabriel Rodrigues capped off the drive with back-to-back runs: one for 12 yards to get the team in the red zone and a 13-yarder to get them in the end zone. He also had a three-yard rush up the middle, good for a two-point conversion; this gave the team a 14-0 lead with 2:51 left in the third quarter. Overall, Rodrigues had four rushes for 42 yards on the drive. Plus, Novak had a 16-yard completion to Ham.

And while it looked like the Presidents would stop Archbishop Williams on the ensuing drive, that wasn't the case. The team had a 17-yard completion and while fourth-and-long forced a punt around midfield, the Presidents muffed it and their opponent recovered; Archbishop Williams continued their drive and got the ball inside the Presidents' 30-yard line.

While Archbishop Williams picked up another first down at the end of the third quarter, they couldn't finish the job. Eric Lomanno stopped the opposing quarterback for no gain, pressure from Brendan O'Connor limited second down completion to just three yards, and back-to-back false starts brought up 3-and-17 – pushing the team back from the 14 to the 24-yard line. Then, several Presidents tackled the quarterback on a run, holding him to a four-yard gain. On fourth-and-20, Archbishop Williams' quarterback threw a ball to a Presidents defensive back, and the opposing receiver tried to stop him from catching it. This resulted in a turnover on downs. It gave the Presidents the ball back with under eight minutes left to play.

The Presidents picked up a pair of first downs on their first three runs; Rodrigues got them 11 yards on back-to-back runs and Alex Martinez picked up 22 on an outside run the following play; however, due to a personal foul against another player, 15 yards of the run were wiped out. Following a holding call, Rodrigues picked up another eight yards to bring up second-and-12. After that, a 12-yard completion from Novak to Ham near the sideline brought up another first down. And a 20-yard rush up the middle by Rodrigues directly after brought up another first down.

A couple of plays later, Rodrigues padded his team's lead with a 25-yard touchdown run. Helena Middleton's extra point kick was good, giving the Presidents a 21-0 lead with 1:54 remaining.

When Archbishop Williams got back on offense, they made some progress. However, they ended up fumbling with about a minute left and the Presidents recovered at their own 35-yard line.

"Corey Chaparro, he forced two fumbles tonight," Carey said. "He's a two-year starter at corner, so he knows the position. He made some plays when we needed him."

When the Presidents got the ball back, they knelt a couple of times to end the game.

strike to Cydney Green; Caldwell's extra point kick was good, giving the team a 7-0 lead.

It was one of two touchdown passes for Galligan in his varsity debut. He also had a 35-yard strike on the run to Nate Sampson in the end zone; along with the extra point kick, that one put the Raiders up 30-0 with 3:46 remaining in the first half.

"He had a great offseason," Craig said of Galligan. "He put the work in. He's an up-and-coming player. I'm proud of the way he stepped in there tonight as a sophomore in his first career start. I think he did a great job. I think he had a lot of poise. He was very calm and made some good plays."

On the drive following the Raiders' first touchdown of the game, Somerville had moderate success moving the ball. They had back-to-back first downs before they were forced to punt.

It looked like the Raiders may score on their second drive of the contest, but they didn't. They fumbled on the opposing eight-yard line, giving the ball back to their opponent.

When Somerville had the ball, however, the Raiders added to their point total.

On third-and-12, Somerville had a botched snap. The ball went into Somerville's end zone and a host of Raiders, including Ramire Johnson and Noah Baker, brought tackled the quarterback for a safety with 9:38 remaining in the second quarter.

And the Raiders picked up more points on the safety kick. Caldwell returned the ball 61 yards to the end zone for a touchdown. His extra point kick put the Raiders up 16-0.

Just a few minutes later, Caldwell struck again. The Raiders defense forced a three-and-out with linebacker Matt Whooley sacking the quarterback on a blitz. When Somerville punted again, Caldwell took the ball 50 yards to the end zone for yet another touchdown; and his extra point kick put the Raiders up 23-0 with 6:53 remaining in the first half.

The Raiders went into halftime with a 30-0 lead and continued to add to it.

The Raiders used different personnel in the second half and spread the ball out on the ground. The team had 10 different players record a rush in the contest. That included fullback Ariel White (3 rushes, 46 yards), who had a 15-yard touchdown run with 1:57 remaining in the third quarter; Caldwell hit the extra point kick to make it a 37-0 game.

Sophomore Devin Tran was another one; he had a two-yard touchdown run with under five minutes remaining in the game. And Caldwell hit his sixth extra point kick of the game to put the team up 44-0.

"We have a young team as it is," Craig said of being able to get different players varsity experience. "We expected some different guys to play. Fortunately, the game went the way that it did and we were able to get guys in there and they got that valuable varsity experience. It's always a good thing."

Since the Raiders had a lead exceeding 30 points after three quarters, the game had a running clock in its final 12 minutes.

The Raiders have a bye week this week. North Quincy's next game will take place Friday, Sept. 23 at home against Malden Catholic. Kick off is at 7 p.m. at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

nose it and I didn't pursue it further. What do you think could be causing this?

I would go back to the dealer and have them check for transmission codes. What you are describing sounds like the transmission torque convertor is staying locked up, this is sometimes called "chuggle". Kia did come out with an update to a part called a damper clutch solenoid which may cure the issue. In addition, this could also be a combination of the transmission design and the beginning of a very slight engine misfire. At 66,000 miles if one of the spark plugs is getting a bit worn, this could also exaggerate the condition.

Several weeks ago, my 17-year-old son purchased a car for $4,500. The car - a BMW - actually seemed to be a good deal, but he then returned to the same seller in the hope of getting a different color. The second car turned out to have a fraudulent title as well as an odometer that had been turned back. We discovered this through a Carfax report. I was informed by both my son and his mother that they attempted to get even some of their money back and return the car, but the seller refused and at this point may have actually even blocked their phone numbers. Do you have any suggestions as to how we might proceed to rectify this issue/problem?

The first thing that needs to be determined is if the seller was a legitimate car dealer or someone who just buys and sells cars without a license. The seller may be someone who just "jumps" titles selling a car they purchased without retitling it in their name. Depending on where you live, state agencies rarely get involved in private party sales. If they are a legitimate car dealer you may be able to get some help through a dealer organization or the attorney general in your state. Odometer and title fraud are subject to both state and federal laws and can carry serious fines. At this point you may need to contact an attorney that specializes in automobile fraud.

I have a 2006 Ford Mustang convertible which is in great condition but makes a clunking noise which can't be located. I have had the car checked over, but all the parts seem to be in good shape.

I would take one more look at all of the suspension components including the front struts and strut bearings. At 16 years old there could also be some wear in the steering column. Your Mustang - like many cars - uses two flexible joints that connect the steering column to the rack and pinion steer gear. If one of this joints is worn, there will be a clunk.

My daughter owns a 2009 Pontiac Vibe GT with AWD and keeps it well maintained. As Pontiac is no longer in business, getting certain parts can be problematic. Her mechanic has indicated her motor mounts are wearing out but cannot find a source of Pontiac Vibe replacements. As the Vibe is a close cousin to a Toyota Matrix, could motor mounts for a Toyota Matrix be used? Should she consider taking the car directly to Toyota, or quietly recommend to her mechanic the potential alternate? The car only has 115,000 miles on it and is generally in great condition.

You are correct that the Pontiac Vibe and the Toyota Matrix are nearly identical cars except for the interior and sheet metal. In fact, these cars were built side by side in the same assembly plant. Based on this I would say the Toyota motor mounts should be an exact fit. Also, I would check online. A quick check of both CARiD and RockAuto shows the motor mounts are in stock and are the same part number for the Vibe and Matrix. I would chat with the mechanic and ask if they would be willing to install the parts needed if she purchased them.

I bought a 2021 VW Arteon sedan service loaner with 6,000 miles. The car runs great but various systems such as navigation display, radio, lane assist, traffic sign recognition and more were regularly not working sporadically until 10,000 miles and then all of a sudden everything worked flawlessly. Now at 17,000 miles with zero issues. I heard of VW's problem with their software recently. Any thoughts on why I experienced these tech issues?

Just like phones and computers cars have both software and firmware updates. Depending on the vehicle, some of these updates are performed while the car is in for service, and some are over the air updates. VW did have an update of its Wi-Fi module and interesting that it noted that updating the module would "permit future functionality of Over the Air (OTA) updating of various control modules."

I have a 2017 Ford Edge that I purchased from Hertz in 2019 that had 31,273 miles and was inspected by a AAA Approved Repair Shop before purchase. It has been properly maintained during my time as owner. Everything was fine until car reached 64,930 miles in April which was 4,930 miles over warranty. The check engine light came on. The code showed an engine misfire and at that time all ignition coils and spark plugs were replaced by an independent repair shop. Within days light came on again and further diagnostic testing showed misfiring in a single cylinder. After a couple of attempts, the coils were replaced with Ford parts. This went on for weeks until repair shop suggested I call Ford. Over the phone the Ford Service Advisor immediately diagnosed the issue as coolant contamination into the cylinders (evidently, they'd seen it before). I brought vehicle to a Ford Service Center and their diagnostic testing confirmed what the Service Advisor told me over the phone and that I would need a new engine. After doing some research this seems to be a fairly common issue with the Edge 2.0L Eco-Boost engine after reaching 60,000-70,000 miles. Seems to me a five-year-old, well-maintained engine that needs to be replaced would be a sign of a manufacture defect, especially when Ford has issued at least seven Technician Service Bulletins pertaining to this very issue since 2018, the most recent dated 6/10/22, and all recommending long block replacement. At what point would the NHTSA get involved with a possible recall?

This engine as well as the smaller 1.5-liter engine found in the Escape has been prone to several engine issues. So far to my knowledge Ford is only repairing these engines under the standard warranty. You are certainly correct: you would expect a properly maintained engine to last at least 200,000 miles, not 65,000 miles. Regarding a NHTSA recall although the engine misfires, apparently it doesn't fit into the category of a safety recall. In other words, the car doesn't break down at highway speeds causing a potential crash. That being said I would still file a complaint with NHTSA. I would also consider taking Ford to court under a warranty of merchantability. A warranty of merchantability is a type of warranty that asserts that the goods are reasonably fit for its ordinary and intended purpose for which they are sold. Now I'm hardly an attorney but, to me it seems like an engine that fails this early is not living up to its intended purpose.

back. It's heroic in the extreme, and yet they did that, and that's why we're here."

Lynch said it was important to also remember that Quincy's first responders are prepared to make the same sacrifice today that New York's first responders made 21 years ago.

"It's not just about remembering their sacrifice. It's about remembering that these firefighters here, these police officers here, are duty bound. When that call came on Sept. 11, 2001, those firefighters and police and EMS responded like these firefighters and these police will respond today if such a call came," the congressman said.

"So we want to give thanks for their willingness to put on that uniform to serve us all and to protect us and we are blessed in Quincy to have a mayor and a City Council supported by a state legislature that is willing to fund and protect and train our police and fire and that do render them the respect they deserve by the service they render to us all."

Lynch also remembered the sense of unity in the United States in the days following Sept. 11, and said he hopes that the nation may come together like that once again.

"There were no Democrats on Sept. 12. There were no Republicans on Sept. 12," he said. "We were one nation, together, bound in a common mission both to heal and comfort the grieving, to honor the deceased, but also to seek vengeance on those who attacked our country."

"I yearn for that unity and that sense of mission and shared sense of purpose that gripped us in the weeks and months and years after that."

Crane Library $5 Bag Sale Held Over

The Crane Library Bookstore's $5 Bag Sale was such a hit with patrons last week, it's being held over to Saturday, Sept. 17th.

From 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., customers may purchase a provided bag for $5 and fill it with their personal choices of DVDs and CDs.

The shop is eager to clear the stockroom overflowing with CD and DVD donations received from former pandemic shut-ins. So, for $5 one may again purchase a 14 x 9 x 10-inch bag and fill it with an excellent assortment of DVD's and CD's to entertain adults and children.

If reading is more your preference, fiction and non-fiction hard cover books sell for $2 and paperbacks for $1, with even lower pricing for children's books and mass-market paperback novels.

Bookstore earnings support the library's diverse community programs not funded by the city, such as movie screenings, how-to programs, concerts, museum discounts and passes, public lectures, and events for children and teens.

Open on Thursday evenings from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. and on Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., the intimate shop is managed and staffed completely by volunteers and welcomes all those interested in helping out.

The bookshop accepts donations of books and media in re-sellable condition. Materials in poor condition, magazines, encyclopedias, textbooks, outdated reference books or computer software and games cannot be accepted.

Address Existing Draining Problems Affecting Property Surrounding Forbes Hill First

Dear Editor:

As a resident of the Forbes Hill neighborhood, I enjoyed a well-led design discussion in June regarding the proposed improvements to Forbes Hill Park and Furnace Brook Golf Course. The community also seemed to enjoy the facilitation. Heartfelt thanks is due to David Murphy and his ability to listen to the community and reconsider the original plan. There was a lot of laughter and true community building and I found we could agree on many priorities and that other, more contentious, issues could be resolved with more targeted discussions. I hope the city considers leading with this type of engagement in the future rather than responding to community push back to get to this place. I look forward to the promised additional meetings and community engagement and welcome an opportunity to support design development along with my neighbors and Mr. Murphy's capable team.

I am writing primarily in response to the mayor's comments in the recent interview published in this paper (July 21, 2022) regarding the design developments and conversations. The mayor made a comment that the legacy reservoir issues and the related drainage, surface water runoff and overflow are not connected to the golf course and park developments. I respectfully push back on that.

The City of Quincy signed an agreement for the "Furnace Brook Golf Course Irrigation Project" on 9/24/21 for $994,494. Nearly a million dollars to pump water UP to the top of this hill to irrigate the golf course. I find it curious that the city finds the funds to move water to source their newly acquired golf course, but not to deal with the over 50-year issue of water on the same hilltop that is creating multiple problems for residents of this neighborhood. These things do seem inextricably linked as part of the same immediate area, and I am among many residents of this neighborhood whom I've spoken with that are likewise troubled by the apparent prioritization of funds for golf-activities over longstanding public works issues. This in the looming consideration of $8-10M in a proposed new golf club house. That much funding proposed for development on the same hill whose longstanding basic drainage issues have gone unattended for decades?

The City has not yet followed through on the promises it made in June. Transparent communication with the neighborhood continues to be far below our expectations, and the lack of specific deadlines or written outcome from the June meeting is eroding whatever trust that was built. I and my neighbors might have more confidence in Mr. Murphy's team but healthy skepticism remains. Indeed, I have been persistent over many months asking questions that have largely gone unanswered or answered without clarity or detail. Our council person Ian Cain has not sent any newsletters to the neighborhood in months, and my email requests to him seeking clarity on this topic have largely been ignored.

In my opinion the best course of action would be to deal with the existing drainage problems affecting property surrounding the hill before getting to the fun stuff of building a new golf clubhouse.

A professional third party engineering firm should be engaged to review the drainage issues and advise on solutions. It could perhaps be put out to bid - not unlike the city did for the golf course irrigation system awarding nearly $1M to National Lawn Sprinklers, Inc. of White Plains, NY just last year. How about it Mr. Mayor?

Long Island Good Place For Desalination Plant

Last month the Quabbin Reservoir, a main source of water for Quincy, was at a water level of 93.6%. Now in September, it is at 90.4%.

I made a suggestion to Representative Ayers that consideration should be given to plan for a connection to the Connecticut River. With the low water levels in the rivers in Europe and China due to drought, that seems not to be feasible. I saw in the news a desalination plant that had been built to supply a small city.

Quincy is in the fortunate position of being a coastal city. Long Island would be a good place to site such a plant if an accommodation could be worked out with Boston. All opposition to a bridge should cease as a bridge would be needed for construction.

Has A Few Questions About State FY23 Budget

If our astute Quincy legislative representatives can find time to stop knuckle bumping each other for a moment, maybe they can answer a few questions on the new FY23 budget, both locally and statewide.

My first question is, what is the "Asian Resources, Inc."?? At $100,000 of taxpayer's money, I'd like to know what the money is to be used for and is this a one time gift?

Secondly, I'm all in on a ferry from Quincy similar to what we had here before. My concern is $75,000 may be good as start up money, but will it be able to sustain its productivity after the initial investment, or will the taxpayers of Quincy be on the hook financially for its failure?

Thirdly, the state is providing $188.6 million for the substance abuse program which I feel is truly needed. My question being is, how much in this new budget is being provided to those that acquire a gambling addiction? This addiction is on the legislators who felt Massachusetts needed this bill passed to enhance the state coffers at the expense of those who may be weak in judgement.

Lastly, I don't see anything for the relief of the City of Quincy taxpayers. Our high-fiving representatives wouldn't even suspend the measly 24 cent gasoline tax during this inflationary nightmare.

Don't be fooled when they tell you that "this budget will actually save the taxpayers money"! Why do I feel another legislative pay raise coming on? Hmm.

City Should Do More To Get Out The Vote

If you Google "election info quincy ma," the first page to come up is Quincy's Election Department, which is part of the City Clerk's office. The page is all text, with a short description of what the office oversees, along with a list of office staff and the names of four members of the "board of registrars of voters," the function of which is not explained. The left-side of the page is a text menu with links to election info, much of which takes you to the Secretary of the Commonwealth's website. Navigating the links recently took these writers quite a bit of time to find the dates, locations, and deadlines for voting in various ways in our fair city.

Compare that with what you see when you search the same terms for Cambridge. The top result is the city's Election Commission page, which boasts image boxes taking you straight away to information prospective voters need, including ballot drop box locations (plural!), newly drawn ward and precinct boundaries following the 2020 census, and voting options for the Sept. 6th primary. Similarly, other cities publicize elections well in advance of election day with sandwich boards placed near busy intersections, while Quincy this year had plans to put up "Vote Today" signs around the city only on election day itself.

We recognize that the City of Quincy is doing some proactive things to get out the vote. Its voter registration table at the recent August Moon Festival was a wonderful initiative. And it advertised the election widely in the Sun. But it could be doing a lot more, especially to reach new voters and those who are not plugged into established local news sources, as well as those whose first language is not English.

Why not put up "VOTE" banners on lampposts around the city ahead of voter registration deadlines and elections, much as Quincy does around holidays such as Flag Day?

Why not post regular information about voting on the City's social media pages? (A search right before the primary showed a single post focused on voting on the City's Facebook page in the previous year.)

Why not send information about voting to recipients of Quincy Public School newsletters and mailings and highlight voting in all city youth programs?

Why not create videos of how to vote and post them on city websites and social media pages?

Why not do all of these things in English and Chinese (at minimum)?

Most of these initiatives would cost little to no money, but they could have a big impact on voting rates. Only 19.7 percent of eligible voters participated in last Tuesday's state primary, a slight improvement over the 16.9 percent that voted in last November's municipal election. And Quincy came in 322nd out of 351 Massachusetts municipalities in voter turnout in the 2020 presidential election.

We are the City of Presidents. We can, and must, do better, to encourage civic participation and carry on the city's proud history as a center of our nation's democracy.

Quincy Votes! is happy to work with the city - as well as individual residents - to increase voter turnout here. Anyone who wants to help with that effort can email our non-partisan volunteer group at quincyvotes@gmail.com.

A Response To Letter From SWQNA Members

I am writing in response to the Readers Forum letter by Anneli Johnson and Maryann Morton (for South West Quincy Neighborhood Association) that appeared in the Sept. 1st issue of the Sun.

They begin their letter by saying the letter by West Quincy's Jim Ryan was "excellent," the letter to which I responded to last month and to which everyone I know that read it was offended by. Mr. Ryan said he brings his daughter to the park in Squantum and commented on Squantum roads, the Welcome to Squantum sign and trash-talked the residents of Squantum for living there, indicating everyone that resides there are rich and inherited their homes. His caustic letter oozed with bitterness, anger and jealousy, yet he takes his daughter to the Squantum playground, where, I am certain, he is welcomed to the community. I wonder if he shares his true thoughts with the other visitors at the Squantum Park when he's there.

I wonder what part of the letter Ms. Johnson and Ms. Morton found excellent? Was it the unwarranted bashing of the hard working folks that live in Squantum? I hope not. As members of the South West Quincy Neighborhood Association, perhaps Ms. Johnson and Ms. Morton can work with their city councillor, the Mayor's office, councillors-at-large, state representative and state senator to get those sidewalk repairs and other improvements made in the West Quincy community. I think all of Quincy can agree that Copeland is in dire need of repairs and attention and it's an ugly gateway to the City. Be a migraine headache for elected officials until they do their job and get stuff done there.

Squantum has historically elected hard-working, dedicated ward councilors and legislators. We call them when something has to be done. It seems Jim Ryan just complains and hopes someone else is making the calls...

As I stated in my response to Mr. Ryan, better parks and a welcome sign can be accomplished with fund-raising and working together in the community. That is something that the SWQNA can spearhead. I suggest you seek advice and guidance on how to get things done to beautify the community, including fund-raising ideas. Social media and Nextdoor groups are a great way to start.

I agree that Quincy and Boston resolve the L.I. Bridge issue and recommend that Boston either build a bridge from Boston to L.I. or transport patients to rehab and homeless shelter via a ferry. There is no need to burden Squantum residents, create a bigger headache for commuters, put the environment at further risk and waste taxpayer dollars.

I also agree that a working farm would be fantastic!

OBITUARIES

William S. McCaffrey, 50

William S. "Bill" McCaffrey, of Weymouth, formerly of Quincy, died on Sept. 4, 2022 at his home, surrounded by his family after a courageous battle with cancer. He was 50. The beloved son of the late Joseph and Ann (Kennedy) McCaffrey. He is survived by his twin brother Sean, Joseph McCaffrey and his wife Margaret of Holbrook, James McCaffrey and his wife Elizabeth of Weymouth, Paul McCaffrey and his wife Marcia of Whitman, Deborah Karchenes and her husband Ron of Weymouth, and Ann Marie McCaffrey of Weymouth. Bill is also survived by seven nieces and nephews and two great nephews and one great niece and many dear friends.

Bill grew up in Quincy and graduated from Quincy Vo-Tech High School. Everyone knew Bill, and no matter where he went, he met a friend. Bill loved the Red Sox, New England Patriots, WWE wrestling, and Boston College sports teams, especially Doug Flutie. He worked as a butcher for Roche Brothers for many years. Bill enjoyed walking and was an avid reader. More than anything, Bill loved spending time with his family, especially his twin Sean. For most of their lives, they were inseparable. Bill will be sadly missed by all those who were fortunate to have known him.

Relatives and friends are respectfully invited to greet the family during the visiting hours on Thursday 4-8 p.m. in the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy. A Celebration of Life Service will be held in the funeral home at 9:15 a.m. Friday prior to the Funeral Mass in St. John's Church, Quincy at 10 a.m. Burial in Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy. In lieu of flowers, donations in memory of Bill may be made to Bill's Go Fund Me page. See www.Keohane.com for directions and online condolences.

Lillian M. Leone

Lillian M. (Oberg) Leone of Quincy, MA passed away on Aug. 22, 2022.

She was the wife of the late Frank J. Leone (Beebe). Survived by daughter Judy F. (Leone) Luca. She was the sister of the late Ernest Oberg of Quincy, MA, Chester Oberg of Braintree, MA and Richard Oberg of Hanover, MA. Loving grandmother to Kerri (Luca) and Mark Jacobs of Plymouth, MA and Joseph Luca of Portland, ME. Loving great grandmother (Mimi) to Cooper and Harrison Jacobs. Loving aunt to many nieces and nephews.

Lillian enjoyed knitting for the maternity wards at the local hospitals and working the election polls in West Quincy.

In lieu of flowers, memorial donations may be made to the Fidelis Hospice Foundation, 25 Railroad Square, Ste. 501, Haverhill, MA 01832.

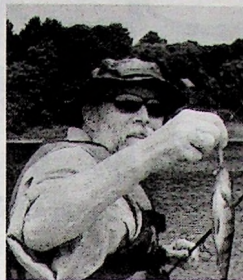

At the family's request, services were held privately.

Donald J. Timmins, Jr.

Donald J. Timmins, Jr. of Quincy, died suddenly on Sept. 6, 2022.

Dianna, his granddaughter, was the joy of his life. Don was also an accomplished guitar player who played at the Publick House in Sturbridge for many years. He cherished time in and on the water as a SCUBA diver, boater and fisherman. Don worked as a property manager, social worker, as well as a skilled wood worker. Don was one of six children whose parents valued their education and graduated from BC High in 1973 and Holy Cross College in 1977. Donald was a brilliant thinker, personable, kind and a champion of the underdog. Above all, Don was dedicated to his life partner Caryn Smith and the entire Timmins family.

Life partner to Caryn Smith of Wollaston. Devoted father to Mary Grace Shockley of NC, Sal Timmins of Brimfield, James Timmins of CT, and the late Donald Timmins. Dear son of the late Donald J. Dorothy Goodale, 76

Dorothy Goodale, a longtime resident of Quincy passed away after a valiant battle with Multiple Systems Atrophy on Wednesday, Aug. 24, 2022. She was 76. She was surrounded by loved ones when she passed.

She was born in Boston to Marion (Haskins) and William Goodale and raised in Roslindale. After high school, Dorothy worked briefly as a seamstress before beginning a long career as a hairdresser at Salon Capri in Hyde Park, which ultimately moved to Dedham Legacy Place. She made many lifelong friends over her 46 year career at Salon Capri before retiring and moving to Florida to be with her sister Helen.

Dorothy was very active in life. She enjoyed frequent walks along Wollaston Beach in Quincy and hiking through the Blue Hills. She was a devout Catholic and dedicated many years of service to St. Mary's church in West Quincy as a Eucharistic Minister. She enjoyed being heavily involved and volunteered much of her free time as a dedicated parishioner. Dorothy was selfless. She always gave what she had in time and money to many causes and charities. Dorothy had an innate desire to care for and make people happy; she touched and affected many lives a throughout her life.

Cherished and loving mother to Sean, William

DOROTHY GOODALE

Primpas Goodale and his fiancée Marjan Esmaeili of Boston. Loving sister of Robert Goodale, Betty Jenner, Peter Goodale, Helen McDonald, and Mary Cardello. Also survived by her son Sean's half-brother, Brian Primpas and many nieces and nephews. She is predeceased by her brothers, Buddy and John Goodale.

Relatives and friends were respectfully invited to attend the Funeral Mass in St. Mary's Church in West Quincy on Saturday, Sept. 10, 2022. A memorial reception followed the mass at Reelhouse Marina Bay.

In lieu of flowers, donations in memory of Dorothy may be made to CurePSP, a non-profit focused on informing and finding a cure for the neurological disorder which impacted Dorothy's life. Contact info: CurePSP 1216 Broadway, 2nd Floor, New York, NY 1000.

James B. Chludzinski, 67

James B. Chludzinski, age 67, a lifelong resident of Quincy, died peacefully, Sunday, Sept. 4, 2022, at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston, in the comfort of his loving family.

James was born in Quincy, to the late John W. Chludzinski and Gertrude A. (Grindle) Chludzinski Goldrick. Raised and educated there, he was a graduate of Quincy Vocational Technical High School, Class of 1973.

Jim was employed as a Behavior Detection Officer for the Transportation Security Administration. Prior to that, he was the former owner and operator of The Kitchen Experience in Weymouth and Patriot Auto Glass in Quincy.

Jim was a member of the Freemasons.

Jim enjoyed cooking and baking. He was talented at carpentry and could build or fix anything. He loved animals. Most of all, he enjoyed spending time with his family, actively supporting their activities and accomplishments.

Beloved husband for forty-five years of Joanne M. (Foye) Chludzinski.

JAMES B. CHLUDZINSKI

Devoted father of Jill Saucier and Amy L. Chludzinski, both of Quincy.

Loving grandfather of Jimmy, Ashley, Alyssa, Adriana, and Olivia.

Jim is also survived by several siblings, nieces, and nephews.

A memorial funeral Mass was celebrated at Divine Mercy Parish in Saint Ann's Church, 757 Hancock St., Quincy, on Saturday, Sept. 10.

In lieu of flowers, donations in James' memory may be made to the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, P.O. Box 849168, Boston, MA 02284-9168 or www.dana-farber.org.

Jake W. Bryan

Corporal Jake Walter Bryan, Active Duty United States Army Soldier, Comanche Troup 5th Squadron, 4th Cavalry, 2nd Armor Brigade Combat Team, stationed at Fort Riley, Kansas, formerly of Weymouth, MA, suddenly passed away on Aug. 29, 2022, surrounded by his loving family, friends, and fellow soldiers. Jake's passing at such a young age brings immense pain to all lucky enough to have been in his life, but will celebrate him every single day and remember that as a young organ donor, he gave so many others a second chance at life.

Jake always valued family and how strong of a bond he shared with his own. Beloved husband to his high school sweetheart Karley (Fuller) Bryan of Weymouth, cherished son of Alison and David Jennette of Weymouth, loyal brother to Alexandra, Patrick, Maxwell, and the late Cole, treasured step-son of Erin Dunn of Walpole, son-in-law of Laurie and the late Robert Fuller, caring brother-in-law to Kelsey Fuller of Braintree, adored grandson to Claire, John, Anne, John, Margaret and the late Walter. Jake will also be missed by a myriad of aunts, uncles, cousins, in-laws and friends that are considered family. Jake's heart is just as large, if not larger, than his family.

Not only was Jake a re-

spected and successful soldier. Jake was a talented historian and could teach you more in an afternoon than a semester of college. With an uncontrollable passion for music, humor that could make a pessimist chuckle, dance moves that became key moments of social gatherings, and the need to make a situation unnecessarily awkward, Jake was easily the first person to be invited anywhere and everywhere. As one of the most loyal men to ever cross paths with, he never failed to go out of his way to help someone in need and never failed to put others before himself every single time.

Visiting hours were Monday, Sept. 12th, at the Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St., Quincy Center. On Tuesday there was an assembly at the Funeral Home for procession to the Fairmount Cemetery, 168 Cedar St., Weymouth, for burial with Military Honors.

Marjorie Scott, 78

Marjorie (Moore) Scott, 78 of Quincy passed away peacefully on Sept. 6, 2022. Marjorie was the daughter of the late Francis and Marjorie Moore of Quincy. She leaves her daughter Elizabeth (Jillson) Howley and husband Stephen Howley of Marshfield, daughter Cathleen (O'Connell) Levie and husband Stephen Levie of Gloucester and son Charles Scott of Washington, North Carolina. She is also survived by her sisters Maureen (Moore) Drummy of Quincy and Kathleen (Moore) McDonnell of Naples, Florida. And her many nieces and nephews.

MARJORIE SCOTT

Margie was born and raised in Quincy and was a 1960 graduate of North Quincy High School. After high school she became a dental assistant and went on to become an administrative assistant at Boston Medical Center for many years. She enjoyed hosting Christmas celebrations with her family and was an avid reader.

She took immense pride in her five grandchildren, Rachel and Kathryn Howley of Marshfield; Alexandra and Brianna Levie of Gloucester and Daniel Scott of Washington, North Carolina.

Margie faced challenges during her life and overcame many of them. We mourn her loss and will remember the great times we had with her.

Her family will celebrate her life privately.

Marie T. Carrabba, 91

Marie T. (Carella) Carrabba, age 91, died peacefully on Sept. 5, 2022 with her son James at her side along with her two best friends, Shirley Hickerson and Tom Contrera. She was born, raised, and educated in Quincy, MA. Marie was a devoted wife and mother whose greatest joy was being with family and friends. She deeply loved both her immediate family and her large extended family of many relatives. She was the beloved daughter of the late Robert and Mary L. (Bianchi) Carella. Marie was the loving wife of James J. Carrabba who passed away on November 4, 1994. They were married for thirty-five years. Her only child is James J. Carrabba Jr., husband of Samantha I. Carrabba, father of Marie's two grandchildren, Renate Carrabba and Miranda Carrabba of Morris, NY. She was sister to the late Norma Carella of Quincy, Florence Ciardelli and her late husband Winston of Quincy, Louise Kelley and her late husband Frank of Plymouth, MA and Florida, and the late Robert L. Carella and his wife Lillian of Quincy. Also, she is survived by many nieces and nephews and many great nieces and nephews.

Her favorite thing in life was being a mom, grandmother and a wife. In her younger years she worked at Liberty Mutual, Filenes, the Fore River Shipyard and later on as an Assistant Librarian in Newton, NH. She enjoyed working at the library very much. Marie was very social and made friends wherever she went. She made a lot of very good friends at the New York State Veterans Home at Oxford, NY where she resided for the past two and a half years. She was affectionately known as "Mama" by many of the staff and residents at the Veterans Home. She had a very contagious laugh and was always joking around with the other residents and staff. Marie herself was not a Veteran, but her husband James was a Navy Veteran of 22 years, which is how she was able to live at the Veterans Home at Oxford. Both the staff and the residents really loved her and were quite saddened with her passing. She will be missed greatly by her family and many friends.

Calling hours and a funeral mass for Marie will be on Oct. 14, 2022, at Saint Mary's Church, 95 Crescent St., West Quincy, MA. Calling hours at St Mary's Church will be 8:30 a.m. until 9:45 a.m. The funeral mass will be at 10:00 a.m. Following the funeral at 11:45 a.m., a lunchtime gathering of family and friends will be at the Common Market Restaurant, 97 Willard St., Quincy, MA. In lieu of flowers, donations in Marie's memory may be made to The New State Veterans Home at Oxford, 4207 State Highway 220, Oxford, NY 13830, Attention: Bobbie Jo.

Her family has entrusted her care to the Johnston & Stanimer Funeral Home in Morris. To share condolences with Marie's family visit www.johnstonfh.com.

Albert Patrick, a longtime resident of Quincy, passed away on Wednesday, Sept. 7, 2022. He was 84.

He was born in Boston to the late Helen (Korsak) and Albert P. Patrick, Sr., and raised in South Boston and Dorchester after living in various western states until he was 10. After graduating from BC High School, he served in the Army in Colorado. He then attended Boston State College as an English Major with a minor in Earth Sciences. It was there that Albert met his future wife, Barbara Seegraber. He graduated with his Bachelor of Arts degree in 1967 and went on to earn a CAGS in Computer Science at the Harvard Extension School. Albert worked as a teacher in the Resource Center at Milton High School for over 20 years.

ALBERT PATRICK

In his spare time, Albert was an avid reader who enjoyed playing chess. There wasn't much that Albert did without his beloved Barbara. They were often referred to as one, "BarbnAl." Albert spent much of his free time traveling with Barbara. Together they visited over 70 countries and 300 cities worldwide, also finding time to golf, fish, hike and exercise walk, play tennis and softball, cross-country ski, attend the opera, and listen to classical music together. A life-long learner, he also enjoyed educational videos on a wide range of topics. He was extremely intelligent and had a quick wit accompanied with a great sense of humor. Albert was never afraid to ask questions or to scrutinize something to better understand it. He will be dearly missed by all who knew him.

Devoted husband of 25 years to Barbara Seegraber of Quincy. Predeceased by his brother, Robert Patrick and his uncle, Joseph "Slim" Patrick.

Services will be private. In lieu of flowers, donations in memory of Albert may be made to AccentCare Hospice of Massachusetts, One Edgewater Dr. Suite 103, Norwood, MA 02062. Please see www.Keohane.com for online condolences.

Edward Calabro, 91

Edward Calabro, age 91, of Quincy, passed away peacefully at home with his family by his side on Sept. 2, 2022.

Edward was born in Dorchester, MA on May 31, 1931, son of the late Joseph L. and Caroline M. Calabro. He was one of nine siblings and grew up in the Merry-mount section of Quincy. Brother of Joseph L. Calabro, Jr. of Weymouth, Carolyn Mullholland of NY, Eleanor Sabini of Milton, Roberta Vernaglia of Brockton, Richard Calabro of AZ and the late Jeannette G. Perot, Antoinette M. Quain, and Pauline M. Anderson.

He was a caring husband of 69 years to his wife Eleanor (Nigrelli) Calabro and a loving and supportive father to his three children, Edward C. Calabro, Jr. and his partner Gerald Ringuette of Quincy, Deborah and her husband, Donald Wightman, Jr. of Naples, FL and Caroline and her husband, Charles Hughes of Quincy. As a young man he loved to sail on Quincy Bay. He loved being with his family and walking along Merry-mount Beach.

Edward was a Registered Land Surveyor, during his career with Harry R. Feldman, he worked on the Niagara Power Project, as Chief of Party. The remainder of his career was spent in the town of Milton engineering department, retiring after 25 years.

He was a Boston sports fan enthusiast and enjoyed watching the Red Sox and Patriots games with his son Ed Jr.

Relatives and friends are invited to attend a Funeral Mass that will be celebrated at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, at 237 Sea St., Quincy on Wednesday, Sept. 21st at 10:30am.

Interment will be private. In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be sent in Edward's name to Accent Care Inpatient Hospice Center, 597 Randolph Ave, Milton, MA 02186

OBITUARIES

Ruth M. Carney, 93

Ruth M. Carney, a lifelong resident of Quincy, passed away peacefully surrounded by family on Thursday, Sept. 8, 2022. She was 93.

Ruth was born in Quincy to Ruth M. (Armstrong) and John H. Heaney. Ruth worked as a cafeteria manager for many years in the Quincy Public Schools.

Ruth was a devout Catholic and was very involved in many aspects of the churches she was a parishioner of. In her spare time, she was an avid reader and she enjoyed traveling with her husband Bill. The two of them were inseparable. Ruth's comforting presence and accepting nature made for a very supportive wife, mother, sister and friend. She will be missed by all who knew her.

Beloved wife of 61 years to the late William R. Carney, Sr. Devoted mother of the late Bill Carney, Jr. and his surviving wife Debra of Kentucky, Cathy Leet and her husband Kevin of Plymouth, Kevin Carney and his partner Tom Bengtson of Illinois, and Mary Ryan and her husband Tim of Braintree. Cherished grandmother of 4 and great-grandmother of 5. Also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Services for Ruth will be held privately. Please see www.Keohane.com for online condolences.

Daniel D. Fratolillo, of Quincy, died suddenly at his home on Friday, Aug. 26, 2022. He was 65.

Born in Boston on Nov. 21, 1956, he was a son of the late Joseph and Edith A. (Armstrong) Fratolillo. Daniel was raised in Houghs Neck, attended local schools and graduated from Quincy High School. Daniel worked as a maintenance technician for Quincy Commons.

Daniel was the beloved husband of the late Christine E. (Dann) Conrad, who died in 2013. He was the devoted brother of John F. Fratolillo and his wife Marion of Medfield, James C. Fratolillo and his wife Diane of Quincy, Anthony L. Fratolillo of Quincy, the late Joseph A. Fratolillo, and the late Thomas M. Fratolillo. Daniel is also survived by his step-daughter Wanda Poor of North Reading, and many loving nieces, nephews, extended family and friends.

DANIEL D. FRATOLILLO

Relatives and friends are respectfully invited to greet the family during the visitation on Saturday, Sept. 17, 2022, from 9:30-10:30 a.m. in the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Daniel's graveside service will be celebrated on Saturday, Sept. 17, 2022, at 11 a.m. in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be sent in Daniel's name to the charitable organization of one's choice.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) This week could offer more opportunities for ambitious Lams eager to get ahead. But, don't rush into making decisions until you've checked for possible hidden problems.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Some light begins to shine on professional and/or personal situations that have long eluded explanation. Best advice: Don't rush things. All will be made clear in time.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Although you might want to protest what seems to be an unfair situation, it's best to keep your tongue and temper in check for now. The full story hasn't yet come out.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Work prospects are back on track. But, watch what you say. A thoughtless comment to the wrong person — even if it's said in jest — could delay or even derail your progress.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A colleague might try to goad you into saying or doing the wrong thing. It's best to ignore the troublemaker, even if they rile your royal self. Your supporters stand with you.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Be careful not to let your on-the-job zealotry create resentment with co-workers, who might feel you shut them out. Prove them wrong by including them in your project.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Although it's not quite what you hoped for, use your good business sense to make the most of what you're being offered at this time. Things will improve down the line.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A more positive picture of what lies ahead is beginning to take shape. But there are still too many gaps that need to be filled in before you make definitive plans.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Continue to hold onto the reins so that you don't charge willy-nilly into a situation that might appear attractive on the surface, but that actually lacks substance.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) The Sea Goat's merrier side dominates this week, and this means that, despite your usual busy schedule, you'll be able to squeeze in parties and all sorts of fabulous, fun times.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You'll find that people are happy to help you deal with some difficult situations. And, of course, knowing you, you'll be happy to return those favors anytime. Won't you?

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Give that special someone in your personal life a large, loving dollop of reassurance. That will go a long way toward restoring the well-being of your ailing relationship.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are a delightful paradox. You like things neat and tidy. But, you're also a wonderful host who can throw a really great party.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD – Move over, Tom Cruise, your aspirations to become a musical movie star at 60 are being challenged by 26-year-old Tom Holland (from the latest “Spider-Man” films). While Cruise hasn’t announced his project yet, Holland has committed to star in an untitled biopic on Fred Astaire. Unlike Cruise, who only toyed with singing in movies until he played a rock star in “Rock of Ages,” Holland portrayed the titular character in “Billy Elliot the Musical,” from 2008-2010 on stage in London. Ironically, Jamie Bell, who played the role of Billy Elliot in the 2000 film, is also set to star in an Astaire biopic for Amazon titled “Fred & Ginger.”

But, first, Holland has to deal with his mental health, admitting, “I find Instagram and Twitter to be overstimulating, to be overwhelming...I spiral when I read things said about me online, and ultimately, it’s very detrimental to my mental state. So, I decided to take a step back and delete the app.” Social media was instrumental in catapulting his film “Uncharted,” with Mark Wahlberg (a $120 million cost that lead to $406.7 million grosses.) All this time, no one made a film about Fred Astaire, and now, there’s three in the works...tap, tap, tap!

Bill Paxton was an amazing actor and a wonderful human being. Some of his most popular films were “Weird Science” (1985), “Aliens” (1986), “Tombstone” (1993), “True Lies” (1994), “Apollo 13” (1995), “Twister” (1996) and “Edge of Tomorrow” (2014). In early 2017, he entered Cedars-Sinai Medical Center to correct a damaged aortic heart valve caused by rheumatic fever that began at 14 years old. His family alleges the open-heart surgery was botched and caused him to suffer a fatal stroke on Feb. 25, 2017.

Paxton’s family sued the hospital, and a week before heading into a Los Angeles courtroom to decide the matter, Cedars settled for an undisclosed amount, which must have been more than the $1 million that the anesthesiologist’s medical group paid them before their court date. The times I was fortunate to be in Bill Paxton’s company, he was cheerful, funny and an all-around regular guy who happened to be a movie star. It was a great loss.

In 1985, Paramount Pictures made a film based on the popular board game “Clue.” Despite casting some of the best comedic talents of the day – like Eileen Brennan, Tim Curry, Madeline Kahn, Christopher Lloyd, Michael McKean, Martin Mull and Lesley Ann Warren – the film fell short $400,000 of recouping its $14.6 million cost. Now, a remake of “Clue” is in the works, starring Ryan Reynolds. Will the creators improve on the screenplay of the original, or are they “Clue-less?”

KOVELS® Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Centennial Exhibition – Nations, like people, have special parties and observances to celebrate birthdays and other successes. In 1876, the United States celebrated its 100th birthday with the Centennial Exhibition of 1876 in Philadelphia.

There have been many other exhibitions and fairs, and some collectors specialize in souvenirs, posters and even pieces of buildings or exhibits from these important national events. Medals, photographs, postcards, even sugar packets and other special food-related items have been saved, as well as toys, books and clothing from the fairs, and they sell easily today.

Many items, like this red cloth bandanna, had pictures of presidents Washington and Grant, images of some of the exhibition buildings and of course, the official name of the event. This bandanna souvenir sold at Conestoga Auction Co. for $71. It can be stitched to a piece of unbleached muslin and framed as a picture (the stitching can be removed leaving it in nearly perfect shape), or it can be dry mounted and framed.

Q: We bought a Drexel dining-room table and six chairs in the 1960s. The style is midcentury modern, but the chairs have unusual backs with spindles that are flattened about two-thirds of the way up. The table is 60 inches by 29 inches by 40 inches and has two leaves. It’s stamped underneath with “Drexel Declaration, 850-330-37, 2/61.” I’ve heard midcentury modern furniture is popular again. What is this set worth?

A: Drexel Furniture Co. began making moderately priced oak furniture in North Carolina in 1903. In the 1950s, Drexel began buying other companies, including the Heritage Furniture Co. After changes in ownership, Drexel became part of Authentic Brands Group in 2020. Drexel’s Declaration line was designed in the late 1950s and was made of white porcelain or brass pulls on drawers. The line has the spare look of Danish modern, but the dining chairs are inspired by Shaker furniture. The numbers stamped on your table include the model number and indicate it was made in February 1961. Midcentury modern furniture is popular again, and pieces sell for high prices. A Drexel Declaration table and six chairs are worth about $1,000 to $1,500.

TIP: Keep humidity levels between 45% and 55%. Over 65% encourages mold, fungus and mildew. Too dry an environment encourages wood cracking, color change, flaking paint, yellowing of paper and destroys fabrics.

STICKELERS®

Jennifer purchased a few baseball cards. All but two of the cards have a picture of a St. Louis Cardinal, all but two of the cards picture a New York Yankee and all but two of the cards picture a Boston Red Sox player.

How many cards did Jennifer purchase?

Strange BUT TRUE

• A town in Washington has a treetop bridge over a busy road that’s just big enough for squirrels, called the Nutty Narrows Bridge.

• Russian author Vladimir Nabokov came up with the idea for smiley emoticons in 1969.

• Now here’s a great way to “go green”: Residents of Surabaya, Indonesia, can pay their bus fare with plastic waste, which will earn them two hours of travel time. The dual aim is to reduce waste as well as the number of cars on the road by encouraging the use of public transportation.

• A U.S. constitutional amendment was proposed in 1893 suggesting that the country be renamed The United States of Earth.

• If you’ve ever questioned the idea that smartphone addiction is real, consider the case of computer programmer Maneesh Sethi, who hired a woman (at $8 an hour) to slap him in the face every time he tried checking

Facebook during working hours!

• The average MLB baseball lasts for just 5-7 pitches. In the beginning of a game, at least 90 balls are required on hand, with about 60-70 used per the average game.

• When Apple purchased rural land for a new data center in Maiden, North Carolina, an older couple refused to sell the one-acre plot they’d originally purchased for $6,000 more than three decades earlier. After all offers were rejected, Apple finally asked them to name a price. Success at last! For just a cool $1.7 million.

• The Spice Girls’ nicknames were created by Top of the Pops magazine in a 1996 article.

• Monopoly, originally called The Landlord’s Game, was invented by Lizzie Magie to share her views on the dangers of capitalism.

Now here’s a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

• “If you have a fish tank, you can use the fish tank water to fertilize your rose bushes. I do this, and it’s rich in minerals that the bushes love!” – A.U. in Alabama

• Make your own bed buddy hot pad with a long sock and rice. Use a sock that’s knee high, and fill it about two-thirds with plain, uncooked white rice. Knot it an inch or two from the top of the rice, so it’s nice and loose. Once it’s secure, you can stick the sock into the microwave for 1-2 minutes. The rice heats up and the heat is stored in the rice. It’s wonderful for aches and pains – or just for keeping toes toasty!

• Shower caps can be placed over a planter and used to make a kind of greenhouse for planting cuttings. Just water and place it in a sun-filled window. Be sure to check it often, because even though it may be moderate or even cool out, your little greenhouse can get pretty hot with only a few hours of sun.

• “Loosen tight jeans with a cutting board! First, wash in cold water, then button them around something that’s about an inch wider than the waist, say, a cookie sheet, chair top, cutting board, etc. Air dry. It’s magical.” – V.L. in New York

• “When I was a kid, the side of my yard was soft sand, but it’s where my brother and I kept our bikes. I liked my bike to stand up, because it kept the sand out of my gears. The kick stand was sinking in the sand, and my dad gave me an old tennis ball that he had poked a hole into. I put it on the kick stand, and from then on, it stayed standing up. Thought I would share.” – M.N. in Florida

Q: Is the legal drama "Bull" being renewed, or has it been canceled? — D.K.

A: After six seasons on CBS, "Bull," starring Michael Weatherly, has called it quits. Showrunner Glenn Gordon Caron and actor Freddy Rodriguez, who played Benny, left after five seasons following a workplace investigation. According to Deadline.com, Weatherly himself was accused of sexual harassment by former co-star Eliza Dushku, but he remained the star of the series for one more renewal. In Weatherly's words, via Twitter, it was "time to pursue new creative challenges and bring his [character's] story to a close. It's been an honor to work with this talented cast, crew and writing/producing team, who helped reinvent the legal drama. Stay tuned for a big series finish."

The series finale took place in May 2022 in a way that was satisfying to the majority of the show's fans. As for Dushku, she played J.P. Nunnally, the head of a criminal defense firm, for only three episodes. She appeared to have retired from acting, but told "People" magazine in 2021 that she hasn't quit acting, despite relocating to Boston, getting a degree in holistic psychology and marrying real estate executive Peter Palandjian.

As for Weatherly, it's not confirmed, but he could very well pop up on "NCIS" again, which returns to CBS for its 20th season, beginning Sept. 19.

Q: Olivia Colman is one of the greatest actresses I've ever seen. I didn't even hear of her until about five years ago, and to me, she's as good as Meryl Streep. How long has she been acting professionally? — M.P.

A: Olivia Colman has been well-known to British audiences for the past two decades, years before she took home her Academy and Emmy awards here in the U.S. In 2011, she appeared opposite Streep's Margaret Thatcher in "The Iron Lady," several years before Colman herself would take home the Oscar for her role as Queen Anne in "The Favourite." After that, she became the critics' darling, winning numerous awards for her portrayal of Queen Elizabeth II in the Netflix series "The Crown." In the past two years, she's been nominated for two more Oscars ("The Father" and "The Lost Daughter"), and has several upcoming projects that will likely garner more accolades — including "Wonka," starring Timothee Chalamet.

Q: What's happening to "Days of Our Lives"? I heard it's been canceled.

Michael Weatherly portrays Cassie Dewell in ABC's "Big Sky."

Photo credit:
Monty Brinton/CBS

How many years did it air? — W.C.

A: After 57 years, the daytime soap "Days of Our Lives" will no longer air weekday afternoons on NBC. Instead, beginning Sept. 12, viewers must subscribe to Peacock Premium to get their daily dose of shenanigans in Salem. Fortunately, the streaming service is very affordable, at just $4.99 a month. Peacock also airs many of its prime-time shows the day after they air on NBC, so if you miss an episode of "Chicago Fire" this fall, you can stream it the next day on Peacock. For more information, visit PeacockTV.com.

Guinea Pigs Hide Signs of Illness

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: My male guinea pig, Dale, was always healthy. He was fat and not losing weight. One day, we cleaned his cage and noticed that he was sticking his head out repeatedly and opening his mouth – like yawning. The vet said to come in right away, and within five minutes of hanging up, Dale was dead. The vet looked at him and said he looked healthy and that maybe he had a heart attack or stroke, but I didn't see any symptoms. Any help would be great, because we have two others. – Julie G., via e-mail

DEAR JULIE: Sadly, it often can be difficult to tell when a guinea pig is getting ill. They're very good at hiding signs of illness, and often they are acutely ill before their owners can tell what's wrong. It's clear that you pay close attention to your guinea pigs, as you were aware of Dale's weight and normal behavior. However, guinea pigs can become ill very quickly. You were right to contact the veterinarian immediately after noticing Dale's strange behavior, which I agree, could have been a sign of a stroke or heart attack. I'll refer to the late Peter Gurney's brilliant Guinea Pig Health Guide. One suggestion, which you may be able to apply to your surviving guinea pigs, is to have the vet listen to their heartbeat. A heart murmur can indicate valve problems. Another possibility is an undetected fungal or bacterial infection that got into Dale's system, eventually causing a heart attack. But as you pointed out, he showed no external signs of illness. For this mystery, I'll turn to my readers. Any suggestions for Julie on monitoring her two surviving cavies?

MORE SUN FUN

"Thor: Love and Thunder" (PG-13) — The fourth film about Marvel's much-beloved god of thunder is now out on streaming. Taika Waititi returned after directing the previous sequel ("Ragnarok"), which became the most successful film of the series so far. With the vision of making this a more romantic journey for Thor's (Chris Hemsworth) character, Waititi brought back Thor's ex-girlfriend, Jane Foster (Natalie Portman), who gains her own powers and can now wield Thor's old hammer. Funny enough, Christian Bale ("The Dark Knight" trilogy) decided to dip his toes into yet another superhero universe but, this time, as a villain! He plays the angry, god-killing Gorr, who Thor, Jane and Valkyrie all must team up to defeat. (Disney+)

"Firebird" (R) — This critically acclaimed war film follows Sergey (Tom Prior), a private in Estonia's air force under the Soviet regime. Sergey gets assigned to serve under an officer named Roman (Oleg Zagorodnii), and Roman and Sergey feel an undeniable attraction toward each other. They pursue their romantic feelings, all while knowing that they could be imprisoned in a labor camp because of their actions. Sergey and Roman attempt to keep their romance under wraps, but a secret like theirs could only be kept quiet for so long, especially as their feelings continue to build for each other over time. Premieres Sept. 16. (Prime Video)

"Do Revenge" (TV-MA) — High school students Drea and Eleanor couldn't be more different. Drea (Camila Mendes) built an ideal life for herself, which — in a teenager's language — means having the perfect boyfriend, the perfect friend group and the perfect look. Meanwhile, Eleanor (Maya Hawke) is quirky and eccentric, as well as a bit of a misfit after a malicious rumor about her gets spread over the entire school. When Drea gets outcast after her boyfriend leaks a nude video of her, she convinces Eleanor to team up and exact revenge from the people who've bullied and alienated them. For fans of shows like "Stranger Things," "Riverdale," "13 Reasons Why" and "Euphoria," you'll enjoy seeing a lot of familiar, favorite faces in this comedy out on Sept. 16. (Netflix)

Camila Mendes and Maya Hawke star in "Do Revenge."

"Moonfall" (PG-13) — A conspiracy theorist named K.C. Houseman (John Bradley, "Game of Thrones") discovers that the Moon has been knocked out of its orbit around Earth. He shares his findings with Brian Harper (Patrick Wilson), an astronaut who was fired from NASA after his mission to the moon went wrong. Being disgraced, Brian initially can't provide much help, so K.C. has no other choice but to announce on social media the impending collision that the Moon will make with the Earth. As his announcement incites great panic, NASA steps in and begins working side-by-side with K.C. and Brian to save the world from incoming disaster. Halle Berry also stars in this sci-fi action film as NASA deputy director Jocinda Fowler. (HBO Max)

Opening lead — five of clubs.

All important championships, whether local, regional, national or international, are played in a duplicate format in order to reduce the element of luck that might otherwise determine their outcome. Nevertheless, the luck factor cannot be entirely eliminated.

For instance, the succession of opponents you meet might or might not play well against you, which certainly will have an impact on how you fare. Also, you (or your opponents) might get to excellent contracts that go down because of horrendous distribution or get to poor contracts that make because of very favorable distribution.

Consider this deal played in the Blue Ribbon Pairs many years ago by Dorothy Hayden and B. Jay Becker, former editor of this column. They reached three notrump on the bidding shown. Hayden's three-notrump bid with the singleton king of clubs was certainly imaginative and was amply rewarded when she made the contract after West led a low club.

She won East's queen with the king and ran six diamonds, subjecting West to severe pressure. He followed twice and was able to discard a heart and a spade comfortably, but then, in order to protect the king of spades, he was forced to discard two clubs.

Hayden next led a heart. West took the ace and cashed three clubs, but that was the end of the line as he was forced to lead from the K-8 of spades at the end.

You could call the hand a brilliant success — if you were so minded — but, all the same, there was a lot of luck attached to it. At another table, against similar bidding, West made the inspired lead of the ace of clubs against three notrump, and East-West collected the first seven tricks to put the contract down three!

Fortunately for Hayden and Becker, they were sitting at the right table.

Incontinence Caused By An Enlarged Prostate Calls for Medication

DEAR DR. ROACH: I am a 55-year-old male in good health and was diagnosed with a slightly enlarged prostate several years ago. My primary care doctor said he wasn't concerned enough to prescribe any medications. I get an annual physical, and there haven't been any changes. However, in the past couple of years, there have been times when, once I get the urge to urinate, I've got to get to a restroom posthaste. But, it's comical at times! Once, I was halfway through a three-hour road trip and started thinking I should stop. I made it all the way home without a problem, but couldn't make it from my driveway to the restroom. I read up on Flomax, which appears to work for those who have trouble urinating. Are you aware of any over-the-counter medications for my situation? -- R.J.

ANSWER: I'm glad you can see the humor in the situation. With even one episode of incontinence, I would consider medication if the person wanted it after a discussion.

There are several herbal treatments (such as saw palmetto, South African star grass, stinging nettle and Africatn plum) for an enlarged prostate with recurring symptoms. Some of my patients take them and feel like they are effective, but the evidence is not definitive. Supplements are not subject to the same standards of purity that prescription medications are. Consequently, I do not recommend these treatments. Tamsulosin (Flomax) and similar drugs are safe and well-tolerated for most men.

One way to assess severity of prostate symptoms is using the AUA score, available at tinyurl.com/BPHscore. Men who have a result of moderate or severe symptoms benefit from treatment.

DEAR DR. ROACH: Please tell the public about prolapses that women may experience and the fact that surgery may be totally successful. I was lucky to find my surgeon and, after surgery, have a dandy little old body. A majority of women do not know about the problems nor the solutions. -- M.

ANSWER: Many women experience pelvic organ prolapse, especially older women who have had one or more children. The symptoms that alert a woman may be varied, but one screening question that identified most women with this issue was whether they had symptoms of "a bulge, or that something is falling out of the vagina."

Other symptoms include urinary incontinence, difficulty voiding and problems with bowel movements, either constipation or incontinence.

Many women do not bring these symptoms up with their regular doctor, so I am glad you wrote. Unfortunately, some doctors are not experts at making the diagnosis of mild prolapse by examination, so consultation with a gynecologist is ideal. Women with mild prolapse and no symptoms do not need treatment. Many women with mild symptoms will do well with conservative treatment such as a vaginal pessary, a silicone device that supports the pelvic organ. Pelvic floor muscle exercises also may be tried before considering surgery. Surgery is indicated when conservative treatments have not been effective.

I am glad you had a good outcome with surgery, because not all women are so lucky -- a third, or perhaps half, of women who get surgery for prolapse will require a second surgery for recurrence of symptoms.

Dr. Roach regrets that he is unable to answer individual questions, but will incorporate them in the column whenever possible. Readers may email questions to ToYourGoodHealth@med.cornell.edu.

2. Who released the 1981 version of "Bette Davis Eyes"?

3. Name the artist who released "All Those Years Ago."

4. Who were the musical guests on the first "Saturday Night Live"?

5. Name the song that contains these lyrics: "I saw your lips, I heard your voice. Believe me, I just had no choice. Wild horses couldn't make me stay away."

Answers

1. The song is about coalminers. They were paid in scrip, not cash, and that scrip was only good at the company store. This kept the miners from saving cash and leaving.

2. Kim Carnes. The song netted Grammy awards for Song of the Year and Record of the Year.

3. George Harrison, as a tribute to slain fellow Beatle John Lennon.

4. Janis Ian and Billy Preston, on Oct. 11, 1975.

5. "Hello Mary Lou," by Ricky Nelson, in 1961. There was a plagiarism problem when the record label was sued by a Catholic priest who'd formerly been in a band when he wrote "Merry, Merry Lou." The settlement included giving the priest co-writing credits and royalties.

'Joe Finn Building' Dedicated To Housing Advocate

umes to the work that this board has done."

Also present at the dedication was Rep. Ron Mariano, the speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives. He thanked Martin for working to create new affordable housing in Quincy Center.

"I'd like to begin by thanking Leo for working with the agencies in Quincy to provide working-class, affordable housing – the thing that we so desperately will need as we change and upgrade the city of Quincy," Mariano said.

In his remarks, Mariano recalled meeting Finn early on during his tenure on Beacon Hill. They continue to meet to this day to discuss housing.

"I can't say enough about the admiration I have for Joe Finn as an advocate and as a local legislator," Mariano said. "It's been a real pleasure to get to know Joe, it's been a great honor to work with him. Anything I learned about housing, I learned from Joe Finn – I don't know if that's good or bad, Joe."

Sen. John Keenan, who served with Finn on the City Council, shared a similar sentiment.

"Joe brings such commitment to the cause and, as the Senate chair of the Housing Committee, he is an invaluable, invaluable resource to what we do on the committee," Keenan said. "He has left his mark, not only here in the city of Quincy but all across the commonwealth – there is no denying that at all."

Martin thanked Koch and the Affordable Housing Trust Committee for their support of the project.

"They were absolutely terrific to deal with in every way and very supportive of this," Martin said.

"I would also like to say congratulations to Joe Finn. He's a guy that I've watched forever. He's always there for people that need a hand. I think he's a good example of just a good guy."

Finn said he was reluctant to have the building named in his honor but agreed to it for two main reasons. The first reason was that Martin was the developer.

"I'm guessing that Leo Martin has done more to house people experiencing homelessness than many of the providers have and he has certainly always helped those at the other end of the housing spectrum," Finn said. "For that, I believe his name should probably be on this building, quite honestly."

The second reason Finn gave was Koch's response to the COVID-19 pandemic.

"He never got the full credit that he deserved during the whole COVID crisis," Finn said of the mayor. "His response was unparalleled, it was extraordinary, because not only did he actually create a situation to protect and stop the spread of that virus, but he also managed to put people back to work who had been laid off because of that.

"As the mayor knows well, we disagreed on a lot of things over time, but I'll tell you, his response to that was unparalleled. I hope in some way I might be able to honor him as well in accepting this award."

In his remarks, Finn thanked a number of people who helped establish the Affordable Housing Trust Committee and those that served on the board over the years.

"It's something we can all be proud of," he said.

"At the time, I can remember it was very important that – particularly having worked with those experiencing homelessness for so long – that the Affordable Housing Trust was meant to be something more than that. It was addressing the overall housing issue that we had in Quincy at the time, and that was the way that we made it work."

A member of the City Council from 2002 through the end of 2017, Finn said he cherished the time he spent with his colleagues on the council.

"I was shocked to discover once I was elected... that there is a big difference between opinions and making decisions, so I just want to let all of the elected officials who are here know how much I respect what it is you do and how I honor your public service, because it's a lot easier to have opinions than it is to make decisions," he said.

"I really cherish my time with all of my colleagues that I served with. I can't dare to name them because my memory doesn't work that well, but I am grateful for that."

Finn closed his remarks by calling himself a carpetbagger, because he did not grow up in Quincy; he recalled interviewing with Father Bill's and being pulled aside by Sheila McIntyre, who emphasized the importance of correctly pronouncing the city's name if he wished to be successful here. Finn then reflected on the John Denver lyric, "going home to a place you've never been before."

"That was my experience being part of this city. For the first time in my life, I really felt at home and I am so grateful to all of you who helped to make me feel that way," Finn said.

"If there is anyone I haven't acknowledged today that I should've, I certainly apologize, but, again, thank you for this honor. Thank you, Mayor. Thank you, everyone."

Colorful Mums For Fall Gardens, Containers

By MELINDA MYERS

Add a burst of fresh color to the fall landscape with mums. This traditional fall flower is still a favorite of many. These fall beauties come in a wide range of colors and provide weeks of floral beauty. Mums are great in containers, the garden, and cut flower bouquets. Fall just wouldn't be the same without them.

When shopping for mums you may see them labeled as garden, perennial, gift, or florist mums. All these different names for plants that basically look alike can be confusing. The answer lies in their response to day length, hardiness, and use.

Mums set flowers based on day length. Growers can force them into bloom by covering them to create the shorter days that initiate flowering. Those grown as gift and holiday plants are often called florist mums. These usually require the longest periods of uninterrupted darkness or shorter days. When these mums are grown under natural daylight they usually don't flower until late fall or early winter. These late bloomers are usually killed by cold temperature before or soon after the flowers appear in colder parts of the country.

Nurseries selling mums in full bloom in the fall often refer to them as garden mums. These may be perennial or "florist" mums forced to flower for fall displays. The intent is to use them as annuals. Set a pot on the steps, pop a plant in a vacant spot in the garden or combine them with other fall favorites.

Even if these garden mums are hardy and suited to your growing conditions, they may not survive the winter. Since all the energy of flowering fall-planted mums is directed to the flowers, little is left to establish a hardy robust root system. If you have success overwintering your garden mum, feel free to brag. If your plants don't survive or you don't try, don't worry. You are using them as a fall annual as they were intended. This provides space for new plants in the spring and an opportunity to try a different color mum next fall.

Those mums sold as perennials are hardy enough to survive the winter and flower in late summer or early fall, providing weeks of color in the garden. They are often sold alongside other perennials, labeled as perennials, or promoted as hardy for the area. Increase your success by planting them in spring. This allows the plant time to develop a robust root system before it begins flowering in the fall. This increases the plant's ability to survive cold winter weather.

Increase overwintering success of fall planted perennial mums with proper care. Make sure the plants receive sufficient moisture throughout the remainder of the growing season and leave the plants intact in the garden for winter. Those in colder climates may want to add winter mulch. Wait for the ground to freeze. Then cover with weed-free straw or evergreen boughs. Remove the mulch in spring as temperatures hover near freezing or the plants begin to grow. Cut back the dead stems and wait for new growth to appear.

Whatever you call them, add a few mums to your fall display. You are sure to enjoy that last blast of color before winter arrives.
